

Hi my name is James Dornacker

And i have relocated to Puerto Rico, the town of Arecibo, and i want to take issue with the fact you only want to improve the east coast of Puerto Rico, gee is that not a big tourist area , this whole island needs help, i feel i am in a third world sometimes, the government is so difficult to navigate, the bureaucratic red tape and insufficient government operations make it very hard to transition.

And to top it off if you bring a vehicle thats paid for ,you pay a phenomenal rate of tax to bring it in. I am committed to my future wife here ,but am very concerned with the quality of life for all , and veterans as well.

As i drive arround , i see buildings crumbleing,and vacant because this government has made it difficult to survive as a business here ,unless your a business that depends on tourism

All government offices have lines , and you can be required to go to multiple places to get certain things done because of the inefficiency of all the offices . Promesea should change that , but i think more must be done, towns must have pride in there cities , clean them up , trim weeds along roads , tear down old crumbleing buildings and get rid of corrupt and inefficient government employees and officials. .

I am not from here ,but i want to see change ,i would put together to start a volunteer group to start cleaning up roads and towns ,however ,people need employment so to somehow redirect funds to responsible partys to achieve this may be a great start.

Clean up the city and grow your pride to do even more.

I have knowledge and backround to do this but donot have money or funding for equipment .

Somehow just makeing the east coast is effectively an unfair proposition, you should have programs to start ,island wide, and people who bypass mayors and governors but are under control of or by promesea. We must start at our image and work up from there . Any less is an insult to everyone else who would like to see things improve and get better for all.

James Dornacker
Arecibo, Puerto Rico