SENATE COMMITTEE HEARING PROCEDURE

SEC. 133A. (a) Each standing, select, or special committee of the Senate (except the Committee on Appropriations) shall make public announcement of the date, place, and subject matter of any hearing to be conducted by the committee on any measure or matter at least one week before the commencement of that hearing unless the committee determines that there is good cause to begin such hearing at an earlier date.

(b) Each hearing conducted by each standing, select, or special committee of the Senate (except the Committee on Appropriations) shall be open to the public except when the committee determines that the testimony to be taken at that hearing may relate to a matter of national security, may tend to reflect adversely on the character or reputation of the witness or any other individual, or may divulge matters deemed confidential under other provisions of law or Government regulation. Whenever any such hearing is open to the public, that hearing may be broadcast by radio or television, or both, under such rules as the committee may adopt.

(c) Each standing, select, or special committee of the Senate (except the Committee on Appropriations) shall require each witness who is to appear before the committee in any hearing to file with the clerk of the committee, at least one day before the date of the appearance of that witness, a written statement of his proposed testimony unless the committee chairman and the ranking minority member determine that there is good cause for the failure of the witness to file such a statement in compliance with this subsection. If so requested by any such committee, the staff of the committee shall prepare for the use of the members of the committee before each day of hearing before the committee a digest of the statements which have been so filed by witnesses who are to appear before the committee on that day.

(d) After the conclusion of each day of hearing, if so requested by any such committee, the staff shall prepare for the use of the members of the committee a summary of the testimony given before the committee on that day. After approval by the chairman and the ranking minority member of the committee, each such summary may be printed as a part of the committee hearings if such hearings are ordered by the committee to be printed.

(e) Whenever any hearing is conducted by any such committee of the Senate (except the Committee on Appropriations) upon any measure or matter, the minority on the committee shall be entitled, upon request made by a majority of the minority members to the chairman before the completion of such hearing, to call witnesses selected by the minority to testify with respect to the measure or matter during at least one day of hearing thereon.

(f) Whenever any such committee of the Senate (except the Committee on Appropriations) has reported any measure, by action taken in conformity with the requirements of section 133(d) of this Act, no point of order shall lie with respect to that measure on the ground that hearings upon that measure by the committee were not conducted in accordance with the provisions of this section.

COMMITTEE POWERS

SEC. 134. (a) Each standing committee of the Senate, including any subcommittee of any such committee, is authorized to hold such hearings, to sit and act at such times and places during the sessions, recesses, and adjourned periods of the Senate, to require by subpena or otherwise the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such correspondence, books, papers, and documents, to take such testimony and to make such expenditures (not in excess of $10,000 for each committee during any Congress) as it deems advisable. Each such committee may make investigations into any matter within its jurisdiction, may report such hearings as may be had by it, and may employ stenographic assistance at a cost not exceeding 25 cents per hundred words. The expenses of the committee shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers approved by the chairman.

Mr. Bentsen and Messrs. Curtis, Dole, Gravel, Long, Mondale, Nelson, Packwood, Ribicoff, and Roth

To strengthen and improve the private retirement system by establishing minimum standards for participation in and vesting of benefits under pension and profit-sharing retirement plans; by establishing minimum funding standards; by requiring termination of insurance; and by allowing Federal income tax credits to individuals for personal retirement savings.

Mar. 13, 1973.—Statement by Senator Bentsen introducing this bill (Congressional Record S4423).

Mar. 26, 1973.—Referred to Office of Management and Budget, Civil Service Commission, Railroad Retirement Board, and Departments of the Treasury and Labor.

AMENDMENTS TO S. 4* AND S. 1179

Sept. 13, 1973 No. 1 (478)	(Taft) Permits experience deficiencies under pension plans (when the actual cost of the pension plan exceeds prior actuarial estimates) to be funded over 15 years rather than 5 years as provided under S. 4.
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 2 (479)	(Taft) Excepts binding contracts and leases from the prohibition against sales or lease of pension fund property to a party in interest.
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 3 (480)	(Taft) Defers the effective date of the rule in S. 1179 making investment by a pension fund in securities of the employer a prohibited transaction for 10 years, and liberalizes the rule to permit investment of up to 10 percent of fund assets in employer securities.
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 4 (481)	(Hartke) Establishes a "private pension plan insurance program" within the Department of Labor to insure individual retirement benefits up to $500 per month. Each covered pension plan would be required to pay a premium of not more than one-half of one percent of the plan's unfunded liabilities.
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 5 (482)	(Hartke) Provides procedure in which the Secretary of Labor would hear and decide disputes in such matters as discharge, fines, discrimination, etc., against participants exercising rights under plan.
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 6 (483)	(Hartke) Provides the Secretary of Labor with authority to prescribe standards governing what shall constitute a year of covered service or a break in service.

*S. 4 was referred to Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee and reported favorably to the Senate on Apr. 18, 1973.

BILL REPORTED

Aug. 21, 1973.—Reported favorably to the Senate (S. Rept. 93-383), adopting an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the text of S. 1179 as follows:

Eligibility and Minimum Vesting Standards

Provides that no qualified pension plan would be permitted to require, as a condition of eligibility to participate in the plan, a period of employment longer than 1 year, or attainment of an age greater than 30, whichever occurs later; and Establishes a minimum period of employment within which a pension plan must grant a participant in the plan a specific vested right to pension benefits (the plan must provide a plan participant who has been employed for 5 years with a vested right to 25% of the pension benefits that he has accumulated, increased by 5% for each additional year of plan participation until the employee becomes entitled to 50% vesting. The required vesting level of 50% is then increased 10% a year for each additional year of plan participation, so that 100% vesting is required after 15 years of employment and 10 years of plan participation).

Minimum Funding Standards

Requires the payment of current or normal pension costs and the level payment, or amortization, over a 30-year period of unfunded accrued liabilities, without regard to whether such past service liabilities are vested or unvested;

Grants the Secretary of the Treasury authority to establish qualifying standards for actuaries and to certify actuaries for practice before the Internal Revenue Service;

Provides for the creation of an Advisory Board of Actuaries to assist the Secretary in evaluating actuarial problems, certification of pension plans by actuaries every 3 years, or more frequently if the Secretary deems it desirable, and notification of change of actuaries by plans and reasons therefor;

S. 1179★—Continued	BILL REPORTED—Continued
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 7 (484) (Hartke) Makes benefit payable as a joint and survivor annuity unless the participant elects otherwise and provides that the joint and survivor annuity must be at least one half the annuity where no election is made.	Provides that in the case of multiemployer plans, where the new minimum standards result in an increase in annual costs of 10% or more, the Secretary could allow past service costs existing on the effective date to be funded over a specified longer period;
Sept. 13, 1973 No. 8 (485) (Hartke) Requires all pension plans to provide for 100 percent after 5 years of service under the plan. Employees must be eligible to participate in a plan after a period of service no longer than 2 years or attainment of age 25, whichever occurs later.	Continues present law funding requirements in the case of Federal, State, and local government pension plans. However, the committee directed the Treasury to make a study of the funding of government pension plans;
Sept. 17, 1973 No. 9 (488) (Jackson) Accelerates initial vesting so that an employee who is covered by a qualified pension or profit-sharing plan for a period of more than one year, but less than six years, would be vested with 25% of his accrued normal retirement benefit. His interest would be increased by 5 percent per year until he completed 10 years of service, and then that interest would be increased by 10% per year so that after 15 years he would be 100-percent vested in his accrued pension benefit.	Provides that plans funded exclusively by the purchase of level annual premium insurance contracts would be deemed to comply with funding requirements if the insurance company is licensed to do business in the State where the employer is located; and
Sept. 17, 1973 No. 10 (489) (Jackson) Deletes the provision contained in the bill which permits plans providing immediate 100 percent vesting to require up to 3 years of service before permitting an employee to be eligible to participate in such a pension plan and provides that an employee who has completed 1 year of service shall be 100-percent vested in his accrued pension or profit-sharing retirement benefit.	Provides that the Secretary should be permitted to waive the minimum funding requirement in cases involving financial hardship to the employer, with a proviso that the waived contribution must be made up in level payments over the next 10 years (but more than five such waivers may be made in a 10-year period).
Sept. 17, 1973 No. 11 (495) (Tunney) Directs the Secretary of the Treasury to undertake a study of the sufficiency of vesting standards with respect to high mobility employees and recommend such changes as are appropriate to afford them adequate protection against unreasonable forfeiture of accrued pension benefits as a result of frequent job changes.	Portability
Sept. 17, 1973 No. 12 (496) (Nelson, Long, Bentsen, Bennett) (Finance Committee amendment in the nature of a substitute to S. 4.) Contains a series of provisions pertaining to Federal administration of requirements which pension plans must meet; minimum standards for participation vesting and funding; portability; plan termination insurance; fiduciary standards; and enforcement procedures.	Provides a mechanism for a voluntary portability program for vested pensions by establishing a central portability fund to receive deposits of moneys representing an employee's vested rights when he is separated from an employer prior to reaching retirement age. The employee's interest in the portability fund could then be transferred to his next employer's pension fund. In each case the transfers are dependent upon the voluntary agreement of the first employer, the employee, and the subsequent employer to participate in the portability provisions; and
Sept. 17, 1973 No. 13 (497) (Nelson, Long, Bentsen, Bennett) (Finance Committee amendment adding provisions on retirement savings, etc., to S. 4) Provides for the deductibility of individual retirement savings, increased deductions for self-employed individuals covered by H.R. 10 type plans, a limitation on proprietary employee contributions to qualified pension plans and a revised method of taxing certain lump sum distributions.	Requires employers to notify the Social Security Administration upon termination of employment by an employee with a vested pension right, so the Social Security Administration can maintain a lifetime record of an employee's vested pension rights and the current address of the pension fund liable to pay such pension.
	Plan Termination Insurance
	Provides for a program of plan termination insurance administered in the same fashion as the central portability fund (the pension benefit insured would be the vested benefit provided for under the plan, up to 70% of the average monthly wage in the last 5 years, but not more than $750 a month).
	Fiduciary Standards
	Establishes fiduciary standards which are essentially the same as the definitions of "prohibited transactions" ("prohibited transactions" refers generally to transactions which fiduciaries should not engage in);
	Imposes excise taxes in cases where there is a violation of the rules prohibiting such transactions; and
	Prohibits the investment of pension funds in employer securities, but provided that this rule would not apply to present holdings of employer securities by pension funds, and agreed to limit investment in employer securities by profit-sharing trusts to 10 percent of trust assets in those cases where the employer securities are not readily tradeable on an established securities market, but provided this rule would not apply to present holdings of employer securities.

Sept. 18, 1973 No. 14 (503)	(Curtis) Provides that the term "Year of service" shall mean a calendar, plan, or fiscal year during which an individual is employed by the employer on the anniversary date of his employment.	Enforcement Procedures Provides for the establishment with the Internal Revenue Service of a separate office, headed by an Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to deal primarily with organizations that are or claim to be exempt from income tax under sec. 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code—including pension and other trusts; religious, charitable, educational, et cetera, organizations; and others described in sec. 501(c) of the Code; Imposes on employers an excise tax, essentially an audit tax, equal to the number of his employees covered by qualified plans times $1 to reimburse the Government for the cost of regulating these organizations; Provides a procedure for obtaining declaratory judgments by providing that both the employer and the employees may appeal to the Tax Court for a review of an Internal Revenue Service determination letter and request a declaratory judgment as to the status of the plan or amendment. In addition, provision is made for appeals to the Tax Court and other Federal courts in the case of proposed excise taxes based on alleged violations of the fiduciary standards, and on other questions involving plan qualification; and Provides for the availability of arbitration services by the National Mediation Service in cases involving class actions affecting the qualification, administration, or operation of qualified pension plans and provided that Commissioners of the Tax Court of the United States should provide low-cost arbitration services in the case of disputes involving claims of individual participants in pension plans.
Sept. 18, 1973 No. 15 (504)	(Buckley) Permits individuals to annually deduct $1,000 of earned income or 15 percent of earned income up to $7,500 per year, whichever is greater, for contributions made to a qualified individual retirement savings plan.	Individual Retirement Plans Provides for a new deduction for contributions to individual retirement plans to be available only to those persons not covered by qualified pension plans established by corporations, self-employed persons, or Federal, State, and local governmental units. The deduction would be limited to $1,000 a year and, while there is no percentage-of-earned-income limitation on the deduction, the taxpayer must have earned income.
Sept. 18, 1973 No. 16 (505)	(Nelson) Changes the limit on average compensation of a proprietary employee from $100,000 to $90,000. Since the pension of a proprietary employee is limited to 75 percent of such average compensation, the effect is to reduce the maximum pension permitted a proprietary employee from $75,000 to $45,000.	Self-Employed (H.R. 10) Plans—Limits on Contributions Raises the limit on contributions to self-employed (H.R. 10) pension plans, while at the same time making such increased limitations applicable to corporate pension plans in which the owner-managers have a significant interest; Permits a deductible contribution to a self-employed plan of up to 15 percent of earned income, taking into account earned income not in excess of $100,000, and with a maximum contribution of $7,500 per individual (the present law limitation is 10 percent of earned income, but not in excess of $2,500). The effect of the $100,000 limit on earned income is that higher income self-employed, desiring to achieve the $7,500 maximum contribution for themselves, will find it necessary to contribute on behalf of their employees at a 7½ percent or greater rate; and Applies the self-employed plan limitation on contributions described above, to contributions on behalf of certain owner-managers of corporations (the owner-managers referred to are those having more than a 2-percent ownership interest in the stock of a corporation, but only if all such persons in a particular corporation in the aggregate have more than a 25-percent interest in the contributions or benefits of the pension plan).
Sept. 18, 1973 No. 17 (506)	(Nelson) Provides that the maximum limitations on retirement benefits applicable to proprietary employees shall also apply to all other corporate employees. Thus, contributions on behalf of any corporate employee to a qualified pension plan could not exceed 75 percent of the average of that employee's highest 3 years' compensation but, in no event, could an annual pension benefit in excess of $75,000 be funded for any corporate employee. Also, such funding could not take place over a period less than 10 years.

S. 1179★—Continued	BILL REPORTED—Continued Miscellaneous Pension Amendments JOINT AND SURVIVOR OPTION Provides that a qualified pension plan must include a provision allowing an employee-participant a choice between having his pension benefit paid out as a single life annuity over his lifetime or having a reduced annuity for his lifetime with a survivor's annuity being provided his spouse, if she should survive him; MONEY PURCHASE PLAN LIMITATION Provides that contributions to a money purchase pension plan on behalf of an employee should be included in such employee's gross income to the extent that such contribution is in excess of 20 percent of the employee's compensation; and LUMP-SUM DISTRIBUTIONS Provides for a new tax treatment of lump-sum distributions received by an employee from a qualified retirement plan on termination of employment. FURTHER COMMITTEE ACTION Sept. 14, 1973.—Committee on Finance reconsidered, and approved amendments to certain provisions of S. 1179, as previously reported, as follows: Deletes the contribution limitations on proprietary employees in S. 1179 and substitutes therefor a rule expressed as a limitation on the stated pension benefit which may be provided a proprietary employee. The limitation is that the pension of a proprietary employee under a plan shall not exceed 75 percent of the average of the employee's highest 3 years of compensation, with a limitation that average compensation in excess of $100,000 will be disregarded. The maximum pension benefit permitted a proprietary employee is $75,000. This maximum benefit is to be funded over the remaining working life of the employee, but may not be funded over a period of less than 10 years. In the case of a profit-sharing or money-purchase plan, the amount contributed on behalf of a proprietary employee would be subject to limitations corresponding in substance to the limitations on contributions on behalf of proprietary employees under a stated benefit plan; Retains the provisions of present law which permit corporations to integrate their pension plans with social security (under the provisions of S. 1179, as initially reported by the committee, certain restrictions were imposed upon plans benefiting proprietary employees, including a limitation on the use of a formula which would integrate such plans with social security benefits); Modifies the provisions governing contributions to qualified plans for self-employed individuals by permitting the maximum pension plan contribution for each of the partners to be aggregated and allocated among the partners pursuant to an agreed upon formula (this provision will permit a contribution in excess of $7,500 to be made on behalf of an older partner to enable funding of a larger pension benefit than he would otherwise be able to fund were he limited to the maximum amount of $7,500 for any one individual. At the same time, this provision will not increase the total deduction for qualified pension plan contributions by the members of the partnership); and Permits profit sharing fund to invest its assets in property of the employer under a sale and leaseback arrangement.

S. 1439☆ Apr. 2, 1973 Mr. Muskie and Messrs. Bayh, Haskell, Hughes, Pastore, and Tunney To reform the Federal income, estate, and gift tax laws. Bill: Individuals Minimum tax for tax preferences (a) Reduces existing $30,000 exemption to $10,000, (b) Imposes a graduated rate of tax of 10% on the first $10,000, 15% on the second $10,000, and 20% of additional amounts of tax preferences; and (c) eliminates deferral of the minimum tax. Gains and losses on property held at death or transferred by gift Imposes a tax on the appreciation of capital assets transferred at death, or by gift, but provides a marital exclusion of ½ of the assets plus $100,000 and an exemption for property given to charity (the bill provides a 5-year phase-in period for these provisions). Interest on investment indebtedness (a) Reduces the existing $25,000 interest exemptions to $10,000; (b) disallows all investment interest deductions in excess of the exemption level; and (c) expands the definition of "investment interest" to include interest paid on passive oil, gas, mineral, or real estate investments. Earned income from sources outside the United States Terminates present law which allows U.S. citizens who live abroad to exclude from their taxable income $25,000 (if they are bonafide residents of the foreign country) or $20,000 (if they live abroad for 17 out of 18 months). Capital gains Repeals the provision that permits the first $50,000 of long-term capital gains to be taxed at no more than 25%, and requires that individuals include 55% of their long-term capital gains in their income in the first year of enactment, and 60% in their income thereafter (rather than only 50% as permitted under present law), the effect being to have long-term capital gains taxed at 60% of normal income tax rates. (c) recapture in full at the time of sale the excess depreciation taken on real property;
(d) includes in taxable income, up to the amount of depreciation previously taken, any proceeds from a mortgage loan which exceeds the depreciated cost of the real property to the investor; and

Intangible drilling and development costs in the case of oil and gas wells and intangible exploration and development costs in the case of mining property

S. 1139—Continued

Foreign tax credit

Requires that the foreign tax credit be computed only by the "per country" method which requires that the computation be made with reference to the income earned in the foreign country whose tax is being credited and prohibits corporations operating in less-developed countries from deducting foreign taxes from income as well as crediting them against U.S. tax.

Estate and Gift Tax Amendments

Integration of estate and gift taxes

Enacts the same exemption and tax rate schedule for estate and gift taxation. Exempts $25,000 over and above the liberalized marital deduction contained in the following section. Increase in estate tax marital deduction

Increases the estate tax deduction allowed to the spouse from ½ of the value of the adjusted gross estate to ½ of the value of the adjusted gross estate plus $100,000.

Generation-skipping transfers

The tax imposed by this section is ¾ of the estate tax rate.

Nov. 5, 1973 No. 12 (640)	(Muskie, Abourezk, Bayh, Bible, Biden, Brooke, Burdick, Cannon, Case, Chiles, Church, Clark, Cranston, Eagleton, Eastland, Gravel, Gurney, Hart, Hartke, Hatfield, Hathaway, Hughes, Humphrey, Jackson, Javits, Kennedy, McGee, McGovern, McIntyre, Magnuson, Metcalf, Mondale, Montoya, Moss, Pell, Randolph, Ribicoff, Stafford, Stevens, Stevenson, Tunney, and Williams) Freezes at present levels the medicare deductibles and copayments which patients have to pay.	Makes clear how certain farm income is to be treated for social security purposes by providing that an individual landowner who enters into an agreement with a person to manage his farm shall not have his rental income under the agreement counted as income for social security purposes provided that the landowner does not participate in the management or production of the farmland.
Nov. 7, 1973 No. 13 (644)	(Cranston, Gurney, Hart, Hathaway, Hollings, Hughes, McGee, McGovern, Mondale, Moss, Pell, Randolph, Stevenson) Provides medicare coverage for individuals, age 00 through 64, who are entitled to widows or widowers benefits or who are spouses of individuals entitled to health insurance.	Cost-of-Living Study
Nov. 7, 1973 No. 14 (645)	(Cranston, Hathaway, Schweiker) Provides that no Railroad Retirement recipient of aid to the aged, blind, or disabled, shall lose their medicaid coverage because of increases in Railroad Retirement benefits.	Includes a provision directing the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to study the various programs under the Social Security Act to determine the feasibility of relating eligibility criteria and benefit amounts to the cost-of-living differentials among the States or among different areas within a State.
Nov. 9, 1973 No. 15 (647)	(Nelson) Deletes the committee amendment to repeal the deduction for State and local gasoline taxes; and repeals the provisions under the present minimum tax which permit a deduction for regular income taxes and a 7-year carryover of such taxes in calculating income subject to the minimum tax.	Policemen in Louisiana
Nov. 15, 1973 No. 16 (664)	(Church) Provides that a practitioner or provider could not be denied participation in medicare or medicaid for failure to perform abortions. Nov. 21, 1973 No. 18 (701)	(Byrd, W. Va.) Increases lifetime reserve days under medicare from 60 to 120 days and reduces the coinsurance on lifetime reserve days, effective Jan. 1, 1974, from $42 to $21.	Permits policemen and firemen in California to withdraw from social security coverage without requiring that other State employees lose their social security coverage.
		Tax Credit for Low-Income Workers With Families*
		Provides that low-income workers who have families would be eligible for a tax credit equal to a percentage of the social security taxes payable on account of their employment during the tax year (equivalent to 10 percent of their wages taxed under the social security program). The maximum tax credit would apply for families where the total income of the husband and wife is $4,000 or less. For families where the husband's and wife's total income exceeds $4,000, the credit would be equal to $400 minus one-quarter of the amount by which their total income exceeds $4,000; thus, the taxpayer would become ineligible for the credit once total income reaches $5,000 ($5,000 exceeds $4,000 by $1,000; one-quarter of $1,000 is $400, which subtracted from $400 equals zero).
		Supplemental Security Income
		Increases in SSI Benefits*
		Provides for payments of $140 ($210 for couples) effective from the start of the SSI program in January 1974 rather than July 1974 as presently provided for and provides for a further increase, effective July 1974, to $146 for an individual and $219 for a couple.
		Food Stamp Eligibility for SSI Recipients*
		Repeals the prohibition against participation by SSI recipients in the food stamp program and also with respect to the commodity program, but includes a transitional provision for those States that have already acted to raise benefits to take into account the loss of food stamp eligibility.

Nov. 27, 1973 No. 19 (722) (Eagleton) Requires States to disregard the Federal SSI payment increases and social security benefit increases for purposes of determining the amount of State supplemental payments.	Supplemental Security Income—Continued LIMITATION ON GRANDFATHER CLAUSE FOR DISABLED INDIVIDUALS* Limits the grandfather provision for disability to persons who had received Aid to the Disabled before July 1973 and who are on the rolls in December 1973.
Nov. 27, 1973 No. 20 (723) (Javits) Amends the provision under which extended unemployment compensation is payable in individual States by (1) eliminating the requirement that unemployment in the State must be at least 20 percent higher than it was in the comparable period 2 years earlier; and (2) making a State eligible if its insured unemployment rate, adjusted to include workers who have exhausted their unemployment benefits, exceeds 4.5 percent.	SSI RECIPIENTS LIVING WITH AFDC FAMILIES* Permits the adjustment of the grandfather clause in such a way that it assures the same level of total family income (rather than the individual's total income) in those cases in which the SSI recipient resides with an AFDC family.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 21 (724) (Mondale) Requires that out-of-home child care provided under the Social Security Act comply with the provisions of the Federal Interagency Day Care Requirements of 1968; requires that in-home day care meet standards established by the State reasonably in accord with recommended standards of national standards-setting organizations. CONTINUATION OF DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS* Permits the continuation of on-going demonstration projects related to the aged, blind, and disabled which qualify for Federal matching under the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act and which involve waivers by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare of some of the requirements of those titles (the new Federal SSI program which next January will replace present programs of aid to the aged, blind, and disabled does not provide for such waivers and funding of demonstration projects).
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 23 (726) (Buckley) Directs the Secretary of Labor to prepare a separate "Consumer Price Index for the Aged" designed to reflect the relevant price information for persons 65 and over; amends the automatic cost-of-living provisions of the Social Security Act to relate them to rises in the new Consumer Price Index for the Aged.	COMBINED CHECKS FOR MARRIED COUPLES Permits joint checks to be cashed by the surviving spouse in the case of the death of the husband or wife.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 24 (727) (Eagleton) Provides that under medicare, a spell of illness could end following the first period of 180 consecutive days that an individual (1) is an inpatient of a skilled nursing facility; (2) receives neither skilled nursing care nor rehabilitative services; and (3) the facility is not receiving medicaid payments for skilled nursing services provided to the individual.	Social Services* Provides that any increase in Federal social services funding in a State be used for an actual increase in services provided rather than to simply replace State funds now being spent on services. Also included is an illustrative list of the types of social services which may be funded. States would be free to provide other services not specifically included in this listing. In fiscal year 1974, expenditures would be held to $1.9 billion, the amount in the President's budget. This provision would be effective November 1, 1973.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 25 (728) (Byrd of West Virginia, Bayh, Cannon, Gravel, Hartke, Humphrey, Ribicoff, Schweiker) Reduces the age of eligibility for widows to receive actuarially reduced social security benefits from age 60 to age 55.	Child Welfare Services NATIONAL ADOPTION INFORMATION EXCHANGE SYSTEM Authorizes $1 million for the first fiscal year and such sums as may be necessary for succeeding fiscal years for a Federal program to help find adoptive homes for hard-to-place children and authorizes the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to "provide information, utilizing computers and modern data processing methods, through a national adoption information exchange system, to assist in the placement of children awaiting adoption and in the location of children for persons who wish to adopt children, including cooperative efforts with any similar programs operated by or within foreign countries, and such other related activities as would further or facilitate adoption."
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 26 (729) (Byrd of West Virginia) Reduces the age of eligibility for full social security benefits (without actuarial reduction) from 65 to 62; reduces the age of eligibility for actuarially reduced benefits from 62 to 60.

Nov. 28, 1973 No. 27 (730) (Kennedy) Requires States to provide at least three types of social services for aged, blind, and disabled persons.	Child Welfare Services—Continued
	CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT; PROTECTIVE SERVICES
	Adds requirements both under the AFDC and child welfare services programs that States establish programs of protective services to aid in the prevention, identification and treatment of child abuse and neglect and, whenever feasible, to make it possible for the child to remain in the home.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 28 (731) (Biden, Roth) Authorizes medicare payments for emergency care provided in "immediate care facilities" (including free-standing facilities) defined in the amendment.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 29 (732) (Helms) Requires beginning with fiscal year 1975, that non-trust-fund expenditures not exceed non-trust-fund revenues and requires the President to submit budgets in which this is the case.	Child Support*
	Leaves basic responsibility for child support and establishment of paternity to the State but envisions a far more active role on the part of the Federal Government in monitoring and evaluating State programs, in providing technical assistance, and, in certain instances, in undertaking to give direct assistance to the States in locating absent parents and obtaining support payments from them.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 30 (734) (Buckley) Modifies amendment 639 so as to eliminate the social security earnings limitation completely by 1980.	Requires States to have effective programs for the collection of support and the establishment of paternity; Federal matching for these efforts would be increased from the present 50 percent to 75 percent but States not complying with the requirements would face a penalty in the form of reduced Federal matching funds for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 31 (736) (Bellmon) Directs the Secretary of HEW to study and report to the Congress his recommendations concerning the appropriateness of establishing nationwide rates of ineligibility and overpayment which may be reasonably expected to occur under public assistance; generally prevents the Secretary, prior to July 1975, from changing audit procedures and policies in effect prior to January 1973.	Makes access to support collection services available to families not on welfare as well as to those on welfare.
	Aid to Families With Dependent Children
	PASS-ALONG OF SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFIT INCREASE
	Assures that recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children who are also social security beneficiaries would receive the benefit of at least part of the social security increase by requiring States, in determining need for AFDC, to disregard 5 percent of social security income.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 32 (737) (Bellmon) Permits any State that so desires to administer the new program of supplemental security income on behalf of the Federal Government, with the Federal Government paying the full cost of administration.
	EARNINGS DISREGARD
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 33 (738) (Nelson, Kennedy) Eliminates the section of committee bill repealing the Federal income tax deduction for State and local gasoline taxes.	Provides that child care costs would be the only work expense that could be separately deducted from earnings; the disregard would be $60 (rather than the present $30) plus one-third of the next $300 of monthly earnings plus one-fifth of earnings above this amount.
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 34 (739) (Taft) Extends medicare coverage to the disabled spouse of an individual who is covered under medicare because of his disability.
	COMMUNITY WORK AND TRAINING PROGRAM
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 35 (740) (Helms) Eliminates the social security earnings limitation.	Reenacts the legislation as it existed prior to the Social Security Amendments of 1967 so that States wishing to have community work and training programs may do so.
	DEMONSTRATION PROJECT AUTHORITY
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 36 (741) (Helms, Thurmond) Requires the President, within 15 days of enactment, to promulgate a plan for a nationwide energy conservation program capable of reducing energy consumption by at least 10% within 10 days and at least 25% within four weeks of implementation, by imposing limitation on bussing children to public schools.	Includes a provision which broadens the experimentation authority in existing law with respect to welfare programs so as to emphasize and encourage experimentation by the States in the crucial area of making employment more attractive for welfare recipients.
	Medicare and Medicaid Amendments
	MEDICAID ELIGIBILITY*
Nov. 28, 1973 No. 37 (742) (Helms, Thurmond) Makes strikers ineligible for food stamps.	Makes Federal matching available for Medicaid benefits for any new SSI recipients, although coverage of these new recipients would be optional on the part of a State; makes Medicaid

Nov. 29, 1973 No. 38 (747) (Cranston) (1) Directs the Secretary of HEW in setting a reasonable upper limit on the value of the home an individual may have and still be eligible for SSI payments, to take into account the value of other homes in the region and area in which the individual lives. (2) Present law requires that SSI payments be reduced one-third if the recipient lives in another person's household and receives support and maintenance in kind from the person. Amendment 747 decreases this one-third reduction by the amount the recipient actually pays for the support and maintenance. (3) Directs the Secretary, in determining the value of a resource, to decrease that value by the amount of any encumbrance on the resource. (4) Present law excludes from income, for SSI purposes, that portion of a scholarship which pays for tuition and fees. Amendment 747 extends the exclusion to that portion of a scholarship used for books, supplies, services, and other expenses reasonably attributable to going to school. (5) In the program of services for the aged, blind, and disabled, Amendment 747 requires the State to provide an opportunity for a fair hearing to individuals denied services or otherwise aggrieved.	Medicare and Medicaid Amendments—Continued Medicaid Eligibility—Continued coverage mandatory for those persons who receive a mandatory State supplemental payment in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 93-66; provides that for other persons receiving a State supplemental payment only, coverage would be optional, depending upon the State's decision, but that a State must make eligibility determinations based upon some rational classifications of recipients; and places an upper limit on the monthly income (initially $420 in the case of an individual) which an institutionalized person can have and still be "deemed" in special need and, therefore, eligible for Medicaid coverage in a State without a medically indigent program. Medicaid and Health Maintenance Organizations (HMO's) Applies certain quality and reimbursement standards to HMO's participating in Medicaid. Payments to Substandard Facilities Contains a provision which amends Title XVI to provide that the Federal SSI payment will be reduced dollar-for-dollar for any State supplemental payment which is made for care provided to institutionalized individuals if this care program could be provided under the State's medicaid program. Federal Matching Under Medicaid for Care to Indians Increases Federal matching under medicaid to 100 percent for services provided to individuals who were eligible for services under the Indian Health Services program and resided on or adjacent to a Federal Indian reservation during the year before they received medicaid service. Medicare Administration Assigns policy and operating responsibility for the medicare program to the Social Security Administration. Kidney Dialysis and Transplantation Requires the Secretary to develop and apply minimal utilization rates for facilities reimbursed under the dialysis and transplantation provision and mandates the Secretary to require that such facilities have independent medical review boards to evaluate the appropriateness and site of therapy proposed for the patient. Capital Expenditures Planning Provides that effective July 1, 1974, authorization of reimbursement from medicare and medicaid for expenditures incurred in the administration of this capital planning provision shall be limited to those costs directly associated with preparing and transmitting reports and processing appeals concerning approved or disapproved capital expenditures. Occupational Therapy Expands the outpatient physical therapy and speech pathology benefits provided through clinics and other organized settings to include occupational therapy and provides that a need for occupational therapy alone can qualify the homebound patient for home health benefits.
Nov. 29, 1973 No. 39 (748) (Cranston) Requires that Medicaid payments to Health Maintenance Organizations generally be subject to the same requirements as Medicare payments to HMO's, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of HEW by April 30, 1974, rather than the July 1974 date in the committee bill.
Nov. 29, 1973 No. 40 (749) (Cranston) Directs the Commissioner of Social Security to conduct a study of the feasibility and appropriateness of extending Medicare coverage to include the services of home health aides to assist patients with kidney disease to perform dialysis in their own homes.
Nov. 29, 1973 No. 41 (750) (Cranston) Provides in any year that States do not use the full $2.5 billion authorized for social services, unused funds may be reallocated among the States which can use them.
Nov. 29, 1973 No. 42 (751) (McIntyre) Eliminates quarterly reporting of employee wages for social security tax and social security credit purposes and provides instead for annual reporting. Includes conforming changes to provisions for determining whether an individual has sufficient social security coverage to qualify for benefits. In some cases the new eligibility requirements would differ from those currently in force.

Nov. 29, 1973 No. 43 (753)	(Pell) Extends Medicare coverage to include eye glasses, dentures, hearing aids, and podiatric services for individuals (who are not members of families) with annual adjusted gross incomes of $3,000 or less, and for individuals from families with annual adjusted gross incomes of $5,000 or less.	Medicare and Medicaid Amendments—Continued REIMBURSEMENT OF INSTITUTIONS AND ORGANIZATIONS UNDER MEDICARE* Amends the effective date of sec. 233 of Public Law 92-603 to accounting periods beginning after December 31, 1973, instead of December 31, 1972. SPEECH THERAPY Makes it clear that a physician's referral for speech therapy services need not necessarily detail the amount, duration, and scope of services required. PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS REVIEW ORGANIZATIONS (PSRO's) Provides that the Secretary may designate a State as a PSRO area and that he may not refuse to make such designation solely on account of the number of physicians in a State. Specifies that the Secretary shall give priority to designating PSRO areas on a local (medical service area) basis and also give priority to designating qualified local organizations as PSRO's where feasible (while priority would be given to local areas and entities, the Secretary, as previously noted, could not rule out consideration of designating a statewide PSRO area or organization solely on account of the number of doctors in a State). Authorizes the establishment of statewide PSRO councils in States having less than three PSRO's (the principal function of such councils is to hear appeals from the decisions made by local PSRO review organizations). FEDERAL EMPLOYEES' HEALTH PLAN AND MEDICARE Postpones the effective date of the provision (from Jan. 1, 1975 to Jan. 1, 1976) requiring the Civil Service Commission to assure that Federal employees and retirees who are eligible under both the Federal employee health insurance program and medicare be provided supplemental coverage or reduced premiums in recognition of the overlap between the two programs. REIMBURSEMENT OF PHYSICAL THERAPISTS UNDER MEDICARE* Makes section 251 of Public Law 92-603 which details the approved means of reimbursing for the services of physical therapists under medicare effective following publication of the final regulations rather than Jan. 1, 1973 as provided for by Public Law 92-603. Calls for a study by the Social Security Administration on the appropriateness of reimbursement under medicare for services performed by optometrists with respect to the provision of corrective lenses following cataract surgery. SUPERVISORY PHYSICIANS* Directs the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to undertake a study covering all aspects related to payment for professional services in medical schools and teaching hospital settings (while the study is being undertaken, certain provisions of section 227 of Public Law 92-603, limiting medicare reimbursement to medical centers for the services of teaching physicians, would be suspended. However, the suspension would not apply to those hospitals which are reimbursed on a costs basis in accordance with section 227). *See further action on H.R. 11333. See further action on H.R. 11452.

AMENDMENTS—Continued

Dec. 9, 1974 No. 16 (2008) (Moss) Provides that the Federal Power Commission would allow natural gas newly dedicated to interstate commerce a base price of between 40 and 60 cents per thousand cubic feet. This base price could escalate 2 percent per year by contract and could escalate with the rate of inflation. The Federal Power Commission would also regulate the price of gas from new synthetic gas plants or liquefied natural gas facilities, but could allow a higher price than for natural gas at the wellhead. Small producers (less than 10,000,000 thousand cubic feet per year) would be allowed a price 50% higher than the regulated base price. Gas discovered on Federal lands would be required to be produced and sold within 18 months from the date of discovery. The Federal Power Commission would be directed to prohibit the use of natural gas and propane for boiler fuel use. Interruptions or curtailment of natural gas supplies for agricultural uses would be prohibited.

Dec. 9, 1974 No. 17 (2009) (Moss) Provides a $1,000 deduction for energy-conserving residential improvement expenses.

Dec. 9, 1974 No. 18 (2010) (Stevenson) Requires the President to promulgate a regulation which would establish a maximum price for the first sale of oil produced in the U.S. The maximum price for oil would be 80 percent of the average world market price for crude oil. The President would be required to report to Congress every 90 days on the operation and effects of the oil price control program. The remainder of the amendment amending the Natural Gas Act is the same as amdt. #2008) (see p. 2).

CONFERENCE ACTION

Dec. 13, 1974.—Senate insisted on its amendments, requested a conference with the House, and appointed as conferees: Messrs. Long, Talmadge, Ribicoff, Mondale, Bennett, Fannin, and Hansen.

Dec. 16, 1974.—House disagreed to the amendments of the Senate, agreed to a conference with the Senate, and appointed as conferees: Messrs. Ullman, Burke of Massachusetts, Griffiths, Rostenkowski, Schneebeli, Conable, and Pettis.

Dec. 19 and 20, 1974.- Conference report (H. Rept. 93-1644) filed in the House and Senate, respectively, with the conferees having taken the following action:

Senate Amendments Adopted:

The House bill set forth the Congressional finding that barriers to international trade are reducing the growth of foreign markets for the products of the United States, diminishing intended mutual benefits of reciprocal trade concessions, and preventing the development of open and nondiscriminatory trade among nations; and urged the President to take all steps to limit or reduce such barriers. Senate added additional findings to the effect that nontariff barriers are adversely affecting the U.S. economy and are preventing fair and equitable access to supplies, and urged the President to take action to harmonize, as well as to eliminate or reduce, such barriers;

Providing that the overall United States negotiating objective shall be to obtain more open and equitable market access and the harmonization, reduction, or elimination of devices which distort trade or commerce and further provides that, to the maximum extent feasible, the harmonization, reduction, or elimination of agricultural trade barriers and distortions shall be undertaken in conjunction with the harmonization, reduction, or elimination of international trade barriers and distortions;

Providing that a principal negotiating objective under the trade agreement authority regarding nontariff barriers shall be to obtain internationally-agreed-upon rules and procedures which shall permit the use of temporary measures to ease adjustments to changes occurring in competitive conditions in the domestic market of parties to an agreement which could result from the expansion of international trade. The amendment provides that any agreement entered into under section 102 may include "safeguard" provisions establishing procedures for:

(1) notification of affected exporting countries,
(2) international consultations,
(3) international review of changes in trade flows,
(4) such adjustments in trade flows which may be necessary to avoid injury,
(5) international mediation of disputes,

Dec. 9, 1974 No. 20 (2012) (Domenici, Bartlett, Humphrey) Prohibits the extension of MFN treatment, Government credits and the conclusion of any commercial agreement with any nonmarket country (except Poland and Yugoslavia) during any period in which the President determines that the country has not entered into or fulfilled an agreement with the United States which provides for the exchange of information on the production, consumption, demand and trade of major agricultural commodities.	(6) appropriate hearings and other public procedures in which interested parties would have the right to participate, and (7) exclusion of parties from compensation, obligations, and retaliation under specified conditions. The House recedes on the understanding that the criteria pursuant to which any import restrictions may be imposed under a safeguard arrangement must be submitted to the Congress for affirmative approval;
Dec. 9, 1974 No. 21 (2014) (Hartke) Repeals the Automotive Products Trade Act of 1965 which implements the U.S.-Canadian Auto Agreement.	Providing that a principal U.S. negotiating objective shall be to enter into trade agreements with foreign countries and instrumentalities to assure the United States of fair and equitable access at reasonable prices to supplies of articles of commerce which are important to the economic requirements of the United States and for which the United States does not have, or cannot easily develop, the necessary domestic productive capacity to supply its own requirements;
Dec. 9, 1974 No. 22 (2015) (Hartke) Repeals percentage depletion for oil and gas production outside the United States after December 31, 1974, as well as the deduction for intangible drilling and development costs with respect to foreign oil and gas wells (includes a provision in the Committee bill expressing the sense of Congress that the United States should enter into a trade agreement with Canada guaranteeing continued stability to the economies of the two countries).	The House bill provides authority for the President to take certain action to increase imports in order to deal with large or persistent United States balance-of-payments surpluses or to prevent significant appreciation of the dollar in foreign exchange markets. The Senate amendment changed the House version of sec. 122(b) to authorize the President to deal with large and persistent balance-of-trade surpluses determined on the basis of cost-insurance-freight value of imports. Another Senate amendment requires import liberalizing actions taken under sec. 122(b) to be of broad and uniform application with respect to product coverage;
Dec. 9, 1974 No. 23 (2016) (Hartke) Repeals percentage depletion for oil and gas production outside the United States after December 31, 1974, as well as the deduction for intangible drilling and development costs with respect to foreign oil and gas wells.	Deleting the section of the House bill that provided authority for the President to promulgate temporary reductions in duty and temporary increases in quantities of articles permitted to be imported for purposes of restraining inflation;
Dec. 9, 1974 No. 24 (2017) (Hartke) Permits only a deduction for foreign taxes paid, rather than a tax credit, for foreign tax payments on oil-related income and subjects foreign oil-related income (including income from extraction, processing, transportation, and marketing of minerals from oil or gas wells) to a 24-percent U.S. tax (also includes a provision in the Committee bill expressing the sense of Congress that the United States should enter into a trade agreement with Canada guaranteeing continued stability to the economies of the two countries).	Amending sec. 232 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 to transfer to the Secretary of the Treasury functions relating to investigations and determinations regarding whether articles are being imported in such quantities and under such circumstances so as to threaten to impair the national security. The amendment requires the Secretary of the Treasury to consult with the Secretaries of Defense and Commerce and other appropriate officers of the United States when making any such investigation. The Senate amendment further provides a procedure for holding public hearings incident to any such investigations (which must be completed within 1 year). The Secretary of the Treasury is required under the amendment to report his findings and recommendations resulting from any investigation to the President who may (unless he finds that the imports in question are not threatening the national security) take such action, and for such time, as he deems necessary, to adjust imports so as to prevent impairment of the national security;
Dec. 9, 1974 No. 25 (2018) (Hartke) Permits only a deduction for foreign taxes paid, rather than a tax credit, for foreign tax payments on oil-related income and subjects foreign oil related income (including income from extraction, processing, transportation, and marketing of minerals from oil or gas wells) to a 24-percent U.S. tax.	Requiring the Tariff Commission (redesignated as the International Trade Commission by the Senate) to provide the President with advice with respect to articles proposed to be included in any trade agreement proposed to be entered into under sec. 123 (124) of the bill (compensation authority) within 90 days after the date of receipt of the list of such articles by the Commission;

Authorizing the President, on his own initiative or at the request of interested persons, to establish general policy advisory committees for industry, labor, and agriculture to provide general policy advice on any trade agreement proposed to be entered into under sec. 101 or 102 of the bill. The amendment requires such committees to be representative of all industry, labor, or agricultural interests (including small business interests) and to be organized by the President acting through the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, and the Secretaries of Commerce, Labor, and Agriculture, as appropriate;

Requiring the Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations and each appropriate policy advisory committee and sector advisory committee to meet at the conclusion of each trade agreement entered into under this Act and to provide to the President, the Congress, and to the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations a report on the agreement. Each such report is required to include an advisory opinion as to whether and to what extent the agreement promotes the economic interests of the United States and each report by a sector advisory committee is required to include an advisory opinion as to whether the agreement provides for equity and reciprocity within the sector. The amendment further provides that the Advisory Committee and each policy advisory committee shall, as soon as practical after the close of the 5-year period after the effective date of the bill, submit to Congress a report including an advisory opinion as to whether and to what extent the trade agreements entered into under this Act, taken as a whole, serve the economic interests of the United States. Each sector advisory committee is required to submit to Congress, within the same time limitation, a report including an advisory opinion on the degree to which trade agreements entered into under this Act which affect the sector, taken as a whole, provide for equity and reciprocity within that sector;

Substituting for the section of the House bill which provided that information received in confidence by the Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations or any advisory committee shall not be disclosed to other than Federal officers or employees designated by the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations or the Committees on Ways and Means and Finance to receive such information for use in connection with the negotiation of trade agreements. The Senate amendment provides that trade secrets and commercial or financial information submitted in confidence in connection with trade negotiations may not be disclosed for use in connection with such negotiations to other than Federal officers designated by the Special Representatives for Trade Negotiations, members of the Ways and Means and Finance Committees accredited as advisors under sec. 161(a) of the bill or designated by the chairman of either such committee under sec. 161(b), and staff members of either such committee designated by such chairman under sec. 161(b)(2). The Senate amendment further provides that (1) other private information submitted in confidence to Federal officers, the Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations, policy advisory committees, and sector advisory committees may not be disclosed except to individuals authorized to receive trade secrets and commercial or financial information and to such Advisory Committee or committees, and (2) information submitted in confidence by Federal officers to such Advisory Committee or committees shall not be disclosed except in accordance with rules issued by the Special Representatives for Trade Negotiations and the Secretaries of Commerce, Labor, and Agriculture, as appropriate;

Dec. 11, 1974 No. 33 (2033) (Church, Hartke, Haskell) Amendment: (1) Subjects U.S. shareholders to current taxation of their pro rata share of controlled foreign corporations' earnings and profits annually; (2) removes special deduction for western hemisphere trade corporations which now enables such corporations to be taxed 14% below the normal corporate tax rate; (3) terminates the DISC provisions of present law; and (4) terminates the special treatment for dividends received by U.S. taxpayers from U.S. owned corporations conducting businesses in less-developed countries.	Providing that the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations shall be compensated at the rate provided for at Level I of the Executive Schedule, and that the two Deputy Special Representatives for Trade Negotiations be compensated at the rate provided for at Level III of the Executive Schedule;
Dec. 11, 1974 No. 34 (2036) (Schweiker) Requires that representatives of each sector advisory committee involved in any negotiating session in Geneva during the multilateral trade negotiations be represented at the bargaining table to the same extent as their foreign counterparts.	Amending the section of the House bill which establishes the Office of the Special Representatives for Trade Negotiations, to authorize the appropriation to such Office of such funds as may be necessary for the purpose of carrying out its functions for fiscal year 1976 and each fiscal year thereafter any part of which is within the 5-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of the bill;
Dec. 11, 1974 No. 35 (2037) (Schweiker) Requires that each nontariff barrier trade agreement negotiated under Title I submitted for Congressional approval be self-contained, homogeneous, and deal only with comparable subjects.	The bill as passed by the House contained a procedure for congressional disapproval with respect to nontariff barrier trade agreements submitted to Congress, to escape clause actions to retaliation against unfair trade practices, and to extension or continuation of nondiscriminatory tariff treatment. Under this procedure, the President was to transmit a proclamation or agreement to the Congress, after 7 days it was in order to discharge the committee to which a resolution of disapproval had been referred, and, if either House approved the resolution of disapproval within a 60-day period, the agreement or proclamation was not to take effect.
Dec. 11, 1974 No. 36 (2038) (Schweiker) Requires the President to notify Congress in advance when U.S. negotiators intend to consider any modifications or reductions in existing U.S. laws or regulations regarding consumer protection, employee health and safety, labor standards or environmental requirements.	The Senate amendments strike out that section of the House bill and insert new sections. Under these amendments, a congressional approval procedure applies to all nontariff barrier trade agreements, to agreements establishing certain principles in international trade (including GATT revisions) which change federal law (including a material change in an administrative rule), and to bilateral trade agreements with nonmarket countries entered into after the date of the enactment of the bill. Under this procedure, an implementing bill or approval resolution is submitted by the President and introduced in each House (with no amendments permitted), time limits are established for committee consideration, and floor votes. If the bill is not enacted or the resolution is not approved as the case may be, the agreement or revision cannot enter into force.
Dec. 11, 1974 No. 37 (2040) (Hartke) Prohibits the President from negotiating trade agreements under Section 102 with respect to any U.S. law or administrative practice which affects consumer protection, consumer information, health, safety, labor standards, taxation, or employment promotion.	Under the Senate amendments, provision is also made for two-House disapproval for Presidential import relief which differs from the Commission's recommendation, and for Presidential retaliation on an MFN basis against unjustifiable or unreasonable restrictions. Under these procedures, if both Houses do not adopt a concurrent resolution within the applicable time period, the Presidential action enters into force.
Dec. 11, 1974 No. 38 (2041) (Hartke) Repeals items 807.30 and 807.00 of the tariff schedules of the United States which relate to the tariff treatment accorded articles manufactured or produced in the United States and which are assembled or processed abroad and reimported into the United States.	Finally, under the Senate amendments, a one House disapproval procedure is established (1) for the determination of the Secretary of the Treasury not to apply countervailing duties during a 2-year discretionary period, (2) for extension of benefits under bilateral trade agreements with nonmarket countries entered into before the date of the enactment of the bill, (3) to all annual reviews of MFN treatment and government credits and guarantees to countries receiving benefits negotiated under title IV of the bill, and (4) to U.S. Government credits and investment guarantees extended after the date of the enactment of the bill. This one House disapproval procedure is the same as the two-House procedure provided by the Senate amendments except that adoption by majority vote of those present and voting in either House is sufficient to prevent action;

Dec. 11, 1974 No. 39 (2012) (Hartke) Requires the imposition of quotas on all imports into the United States. Imports under the quota system could not exceed the average annual quantity of imports determined by the International Trade Commission (Tariff Commission) to have entered during calendar years 1965 1969. Quotas could be increased or decreased on an annual basis to reflect corresponding changes in U.S. production of such articles since the base period 1965 1969. The President would be authorized to conclude bilateral or multilateral agreements with foreign countries regulating the quantity of exports from such countries to the U.S. Exceptions would be made for products covered by such agreements, where failure to import such goods would cause long term disruption of U.S. markets, or where domestic industry producing competitive goods has failed to make innovations required to remain competitive with foreign production.	The House bill provided for congressional delegates to international conferences, meetings, and negotiation sessions with respect to trade agreements. Five members were to be appointed by the Speaker from the Ways and Means Committee of the House, and 5 members of the Senate Finance Committee were to be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate. Under the Senate amendment, the appointment of the House delegates by the Speaker is to be upon the recommendation of the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and the appointment of the Senate delegates is to be upon the recommendation of the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. In addition, the Senate amendment provides that the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations is to keep each official adviser currently informed, and that the chairmen of the Ways and Means and Finance Committees can designate additional members of their committees and staff members who will have access to the current information provided the official advisers;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 40 (2014) (Pastore, Humphrey) Prohibits the President from designating as eligible to receive duty-free treatment under Title V the following categories of import sensitive articles: (A) textile and apparel articles which are subject to textile agreements, (B) watches, (C) import sensitive electronic articles, (D) import-sensitive steel articles, (E) leather and rubber footwear articles, (F) semi-manufactured and manufactured glass products, and (G) any other articles which the President determines to be import-sensitive in the context of the Generalized System of Preferences.	Amending the House provision which requires the Tariff Commission, if it finds serious injury or threat thereof to a domestic industry caused by an imported article, to include in its report thereon to the President its findings as to the amount of increase in, or imposition of, any duty or import restriction on such article which is necessary to prevent or remedy such injury. The Senate amendment further requires that if the Commission finds that adjustment assistance under chs. 2, 3, and 4 of title II of the bill can effectively remedy such injury, the Commission shall recommend the provision of such assistance in its report to the President; Deleting from the House bill the provision stating that, for purposes of providing import relief, the following methods shall be preferred to the methods listed below it: (1) Increases in, or imposition of, duties, (2) tariff rate quotas, (3) quantitative restrictions, (4) orderly marketing agreements. This amendment further requires the President, if required under sec. 202(a)(4) to provide import relief, to take one or more of the relief actions set forth in the House bill;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 41 (2015) (Byrd of West Virginia) Amends the provisions of the bill dealing with relocation allowances for workers adversely affected by imports to permit allowances to be paid on the basis of applications filed within a reasonable time after the worker has moved to the new location. Under the bill as reported, applications would have to be made prior to the move.	Adding a new paragraph to the House bill, defining "contributed importantly" (as such term applies to the effect of imports on worker's employment or their firm's production and sales) as meaning a cause which is important but not necessarily more important than any other cause; The House bill requires the Secretary of Labor to promptly publish in the Federal Register (1) a summary of his determination made with respect to any petition for worker adjustment assistance, and (2) notice of his determination to terminate any certification of eligibility for assistance by workers. The Senate amendments require the Secretary to also publish at the same time his reasons for each such determination;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 42 (2016) (Byrd of West Virginia) Allows, in the case of adversely affected workers who have been referred by the Secretary of Labor to training programs, an extension for "a reasonable period of time" of the period within which workers must apply for a job search allowance. Workers would have to apply for such allowances within 1 year after their separation from employment.	Under the House bill, whenever in any week of unemployment, the total amount payable to a worker as remuneration, unemployment compensation, training allowance, and trade readjustment exceeds (1) in the case of any week in the first 26 weeks of such allowances, 80 percent of his average weekly wage; or (2) in the case of any subsequent week, 75 percent of his average weekly wage, then the workers' trade readjustment allowance must be reduced by the amount of such excess. The Senate amendment
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 43 (2017) (Long) Amends short title of trade bill to read "Trade Act of 1974" rather than "Trade Reform Act of 1974."

Under both House and Senate versions, 120 percent of the average weekly manufacturing wage, if less than the percentage of the workers' average weekly wage which otherwise applies, is used for purposes of computing the reduction;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 45 (2049) (Long, Byrd of Virginia, Roth) Establishes within the Executive Branch an East-West Foreign Trade Board to coordinate and oversee the orderly development of trade with nonmarket countries. The Board would be chaired by the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations; its membership would include the Secretaries of State, Treasury, Commerce, Defense, Interior, and representatives of the Eximbank, the Federal Reserve Board, the Energy Research and Development Administration, the National Science Foundation, and the Federal Power Commission. The Board would be empowered to review East-West transactions involving U.S. Government credits or investment guarantees in excess of $5 million or involving the transfer of technology deemed vital to the U.S. national interest. Persons contemplating such transactions would be required to file reports with the Board not less than 30 days before entering into the agreement; the Board would be required to make a determination that the transaction was in the national interest. Transactions involving more than $50 million which are determined by the Board to be in the national interest would be made subject to a legislative (two-House) veto. The Board generally would be charged with oversight and review of U.S. relations with Communist countries. In addition, the International Trade Commission would be directed to establish a program to monitor imports and exports between the United States and nonmarket countries.	Eliminating the provision in the House bill which provides for Federal reimbursement to the States for any unemployment insurance provided under State programs to workers who are eligible for adjustment assistance under the bill. Under the bill as amended by the Senate, Federal funding is provided only for that portion of a worker's adjustment benefits which exceed his entitlement under the State unemployment program;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 46 (2050) (Long) Authorizes the Secretary of Commerce to guarantee loans for "the acquisition, construction, installation, modernization, development, conversion, or expansion of land, plant, buildings, equipment, facilities, or machinery" (as well as for use as working capital, as presently provided in the bill). These loan guarantees would be made to eligible applicants within geographic areas certified as trade-impacted in order to attract new investment which is likely to contribute over the long term to employment opportunities within the affected communities.	The House bill provides that payments of trade readjustment allowances may not be made to any worker for more than 52 weeks, except that payments may be made (1) for an additional 26 weeks to a worker to assist him to complete training, and (2) for an additional 13 weeks to a worker who attained age 60 on or before the date of his total or partial separation from employment. The first Senate amendment would provide for payments for an additional 26 weeks in the case of workers age 60 and over; and the second Senate amendment imposes a maximum limitation of 78 weeks of trade readjustment allowances for any worker;
	Providing that no trade adjustment allowance may be paid to a worker for an additional week to assist him in completing training unless the worker makes application for a training program approved by the Secretary within the later of (1) 180 days after the end of the week of his most recent total or partial separation (as the case may be), or (2) the date of his first certification of eligibility to apply for adjustment assistance;
	The House bill authorized the Secretary of Labor to defray subsistence and transportation expenses for workers undergoing training at facilities not within commuting distance of the worker's residence. The House bill provided subsistence payments not exceeding $5 per day and transportation expense payments not exceeding 10 cents per mile. The first Senate amendment provides for subsistence payments not exceeding $15 per day and the second Senate amendment provides for transportation payments not exceeding 12 cents per mile;
	The House bill allows a displaced worker to apply for a job search allowance for up to one year after he becomes unemployed. The Senate amendment allows a worker who has been referred to training to apply for a job search allowance within a reasonable period of time after the conclusion of such training;
	The House bill contains a provision which states that any determination by a cooperating State agency with respect to entitlement to payments of adjustment assistance allowances is subject to review in the same manner as are determinations under the State unemployment insurance law. The Senate amendment applies State review standards to all adjustment assistance program benefits;

Dec. 12, 1974 No. 47 (2051) (Long) Permits American manufacturers to review, on an identical basis, negative countervailing duty and antidumping determinations of the Secretary of the Treasury.	Amending the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 in order to reduce by 15 percent the credits for State unemployment taxes which employers are allowed against their liability for Federal Unemployment Tax if the Secretary of Labor finds that the State has not entered into before July 1, 1975, or fulfilled its commitments under, a cooperative agreement with the Secretary for the administration of adjustment assistance benefits within such State;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 48 (2052) (Mondale) Makes eligible for the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) Communist countries (a) which are parties of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and to the International Monetary Fund; (b) whose products receive most favored-nation treatment in the United States; and (c) which are also not dominated or controlled by international communism. This amendment would make Romania and Yugoslavia eligible for GSP.	Providing that final determinations as to entitlement to all adjustment assistance benefits (rather than to only allowance payments as in the House bill) made by the Secretary of Labor absent an agreement under sec. 239 with a State shall be judicially reviewable as provided in sec. 205(g) of the Social Security Act;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 49 (2053) (McIntyre) Prohibits the President from making a reduction in tariffs, duties, or import restrictions for any product whose imports exceed one-third of domestic consumption during 3 of the preceding 5 calendar years, unless the President made a finding that such reductions would not injure or threaten to injure the competitive domestic industry.	Providing that weeks of unemployment beginning after the effective date of the worker's adjustment assistance chapter for which trade adjustment allowances were payable under the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 shall be deducted from the total number of weeks of unemployment for which the worker is eligible for allowances under such chapter;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 50 (2054) (Hathaway, Kennedy, McIntyre) Repeals the 2-year discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury to waive the imposition of countervailing duties during the multilateral trade negotiations. Expresses the sense of the Congress that the President seek through negotiations the establishment of internationally agreed rules and procedures governing subsidies. Any such agreement could not enter into force unless approved by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress.	Adding a new section to the bill which authorizes the Secretary of Labor to require by subpena the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence necessary for him to make determinations under the worker adjustment assistance chapter. U.S. district courts are authorized to issue orders requiring compliance with such subpenas;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 51 (2055) (Hathaway, McIntyre, Symington) Requires that final countervailing duty determinations be made within 6 months of the date of enactment of the bill for those petitions filed prior to December 1, 1974, if no final determination has been made by that date. The temporary waiver provision of the bill would not apply in the case of petitions filed prior to December 1, 1974.	Adding a new section to the bill under which any worker or group of workers may receive judicial review in United States circuit courts of appeals of any final determination by the Secretary of Labor on the eligibility of workers to apply for adjustment assistance. The findings of the Secretary shall be conclusive if supported by substantial evidence;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 52 (2056) (Schweiker) Repeals title V of the bill, which would authorize the President to extend duty-free treatment to imports of certain products from less developed countries.	Replacing a comparable provision contained in the House bill. An Adjustment Assistance Coordinating Committee is created to consist of a Deputy Special Trade Representative, as Chairman, and officials charged with adjustment assistance responsibilities of the Departments of Labor and Commerce and the Small Business Administration. The Committee is charged with the coordination of the adjustment assistance policies, studies, and programs of the various agencies involved and to promote the efficient and effective delivery of adjustment assistance benefits;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 53 (2058) (Cotton) Prohibits the extension of preferences under title V to textile and footwear products which are determined by the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations to be import-sensitive.	Adding a provision to bases for retaliation, explicitly applying the discretionary retaliation authority to unjustifiable or unreasonable restrictions on access to supplies which burden or restrict U.S. commerce. The House bill did not contain a similar provision;
	Extending retaliatory measures to include imposition of fees or restrictions on foreign services, as well as imposition of duties or other import restrictions on foreign goods. The House bill did not contain a similar provision;
	Explicitly defines "commerce" to include services for purposes of the retaliation authority. The House bill did not contain a similar provision;
	The House bill required the President to consider U.S. international obligations when determining what actions to take under sec. 301. The Senate bill deleted this requirement. The House bill permitted actions against unjustifiable foreign practices to be taken on an MFN or selective basis. Actions against unreasonable foreign practices were to be on a selective basis. Dec. 12, 1974 No. 54 (2060) (Dole) Amends sec. 101 of the Committee bill to provide that negotiations shall be conducted on the basis of appropriate product sectors of manufacturing to the extent consistent with the overall negotiating objectives in sec. 103 of the Committee bill. However, actions by the President would be subject to Congressional veto by a concurrent resolution of disapproval under sec. 302 if the action is MFN rather than only against the country involved;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 55 (2063) (Ribicoff) Includes representatives of the American retail industry in the overall Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations.	A requirement, in addition to the provision in the House bill providing an opportunity for interested parties to present views, that the Special Trade Representative review complaints, publish them in the Federal Register, and hold public hearings upon request of the complainant on the alleged foreign restrictions. Also, the Special Trade Representative must submit a semiannual report to the Congress summarizing the reviews and hearings it has conducted during the preceding 6-month period;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 56 (2061) (Ribicoff) Permits the International Trade Commission (Tariff Commission) in the case of a domestic producer located in a major geographic area of the United States and serving a market in that area, to treat as part of such domestic industry only that segment of the producer located in such geographic area.	The House bill contained a provision requiring the President to provide an opportunity for the presentation of views and public hearings prior to the taking of action under Sec. 301. The Senate bill would also permit such presentation of views and hearings to take place promptly after the action, if the President determines that holding them prior to taking action would be contrary to the national interest because expeditious action is needed;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 57 (2066) (Taft) Includes small business representatives in policy advisory committees.	The House bill provided for a one-House veto of any action under 301. The Senate bill provides for a two-House veto of any action taken by the President on an MFN basis. Following the adoption of such a two-House resolution of disapproval, such action would remain in effect only with respect to the country(ies) whose practice was the cause for taking action under Sec. 301;
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 58 (2067) (Taft) Requires the President to report to the Congress on costs to consumer of import relief.	The House bill required that a preliminary dumping determination be made by the Secretary of the Treasury within six months after the question of dumping was presented to him. In more complicated investigations such determinations could have been made within nine months after such question was presented. The Senate bill permits the period for the preliminary determination to be extended to 9 months only after the Secretary of the Treasury concludes that such determination cannot be reasonably made in 6 months and publishes a notice in the Federal Register with a statement of his reasons for such determination.
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 59 (2068) (Taft) Allows the President to terminate import relief prior to the end of the 5-year period, or the 3-year extension of that period, if he finds that such termination would be in the national interest.	The Senate bill requires the Secretary to make a final dumping determination within three months after a preliminary determination, whether such preliminary determination was affirmative or negative. The House bill contained no similar provision.
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 60 (2069) (Taft) Prohibits the granting of tariff preferences to India until that country fulfills her international obligation to enforce arbitral awards made against her and in favor of U.S. citizens or corporations.	The Senate bill requires the Secretary to determine whether or not to initiate an investigation within 30 days of the receipt of information alleging dumping. The Secretary would publish an affirmative determination to initiate an investigation in the Federal Register and the time limits in the Senate bill would provide from the date of such publication. The time limits in the House bill proceeded from the date on which the question of dumping was deemed to be presented to the Secretary.
Dec. 12, 1974 No. 61 (2070) (Taft) Prohibits the granting of tariff preferences to any country until the country fulfills its international obligation to enforce arbitral awards made against it in favor of U.S. citizens or corporations.	The Senate bill provides that if, during the 30 day period of his determination whether or not to initiate an investigation, the Secretary of the Treasury concludes there is substantial doubt as to whether a domestic industry is being or is likely to be injured, he must give his reasons for such determination and any preliminary information available to him to the Tariff Commission. If the Commission determines within 30 days of receipt of the reasons and information that there is no reasonable indication of injury to an industry, it will advise the Secretary and any investigation will terminate. Otherwise, the investigation of the Secretary would continue. The House bill did not contain a similar provision.

	Under the House bill, foreign manufacturers, exporters, and domestic importers had an automatic right to appear at hearings required to be conducted by the Secretary and the Commission. The Senate bill would amend Sec. 201(d)(1) of the Antidumping Act to extend the automatic hearing rights to include U.S. manufacturers, producers, or wholesalers of merchandise of the same class or kind, as well as foreign manufacturers, exporters and domestic importers of such merchandise. Under the Senate bill hearings would be held only at the request of one of the above interested parties.
	The Senate bill adds the explicit qualification to the determination procedure that preserves any confidential treatment granted by the Secretary or the Commission during the course of the determination. The House bill did not contain a similar provision.
	The House recedes with the understanding that the Secretary of the Treasury is not precluded from issuing an affirmative preliminary determination and withholding of appraisement, following the issuance of a preliminary negative determination. However, the Secretary must issue his final determination within three months of his first preliminary determination under the Antidumping Act;
	Adding a new sec. 516(d) to the Tariff Act to provide domestic manufacturers, producers, or wholesalers the right of judicial review in the U.S. Customs Court of negative dumping and countervailing duty determinations. The written notice of desire to contest must be filed with the Secretary of the Treasury within 30 days after the determination. This provision will apply to dumping and countervailing duty complaints made on or after enactment of the Trade Act. Under existing law importers and foreign producers are entitled to judicial review. Further, with respect to an antidumping proceeding or countervailing duty proceeding, upon summons, the Secretary is required to furnish the Customs Court with certified copies of the transcript of all hearings, and all notices, determinations or other matters published in the Federal Register in connection with a particular antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding. The House bill did not contain a similar provision;
	Amending sec. 515(d) of the Tariff Act of 1930 by inserting before the period at the end thereof the phrase "or the imposition of countervailing duties under sec. 303." The House did not contain a similar provision;
	Adding to sec. 402 of the House bill (relating to freedom of emigration in East-West trade) a new subsec. (c) which authorizes the President to waive the freedom of emigration requirements in such section for a period of 18 months after the date of the enactment of the bill for any nonmarket country if he reports to Congress that the waiver will substantially promote the freedom of emigration objectives of the section and that he has received assurances that the emigration practices of that country will substantially lead to the achievement of the objectives of such section. The amendment further authorizes the President to extend the waiver at the end of the 18-month period, and every year thereafter, subject to an affirmative approval and thereafter congressional veto requirement;
	The House bill stated that the President may by proclamation extend nondiscriminatory treatment to products of a foreign country which has entered into a bilateral commercial agreement or is party to an appropriate multilateral trade agreement to which the U.S. is a party. The Senate amendment replaces the House provision with language stating that the President may only extend nondiscriminatory treatment to a country which has entered into a bilateral agreement with the U.S.;

Providing that any bilateral commercial agreement entered into by the President may be renewed if during the life of the agreement a satisfactory balance of concessions in trade and services (balance of trade concessions under the House version) was maintained;

Amending the House bill (relating to the authority of the President to enter into bilateral commercial agreements providing nondiscriminatory treatment to products of countries heretofore denied such treatment) to require that any such agreement—

(1) include safeguard arrangements providing for prompt consultations when actual or prospective imports cause, threaten, or significantly contribute to market disruption, and the imposition of import restrictions appropriate to prevent such disruption (a more detailed statement of such arrangements than provided for in the House bill);

(2) if the party to the agreement is not a party to such Convention, provide rights for United States nationals with respect to patents and trademarks not less than the rights specified under the Paris Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property;

(3) if the party to the agreement is not a party to such Convention, provide rights for United States nationals with respect to copyrights not less than the rights specified under the Universal Copyright Convention;

(4) contain arrangements to protect industrial rights and processes (and such arrangements shall apply only to agreements entered into and renewed after the date of enactment of the bill);

(5) contain arrangements for trade promotion; and

(6) contain other commercial arrangements necessary to promote the purposes of the bill.

The rights and arrangements required under paras. (2), (3), (4), (5), and (6) were discretionary under the House bill. The Senate amendment further requires that no bilateral commercial agreement, nor any proclamation extending nondiscriminatory treatment, shall be effective unless approved by Congress by concurrent resolution under the procedures in sec. 151 of the bill and provided that any such agreement entered into before the date of enactment of the bill, and any proclamation implementing any such agreement, may enter into effect subject to the disapproval of either House of Congress under the procedure contained in sec. 152;

Revising the procedures relating to the submission of required documents for, and the effect of, Congressional action on the approval or disapproval of extension of nondiscriminatory treatment to nonmarket economy countries. Under the House bill, Congress could disapprove the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment to a nonmarket economy country. The Senate bill revised the House provisions (1) to require affirmative Congressional approval of any bilateral agreement under sec. 406 and a proclamation extending MFN treatment if the agreement was entered into after enactment of this Act; (2) to provide for Congressional disapproval of the agreement and implementing proclamation with a nonmarket economy country if the agreement was entered into before enactment of this Act; and (3) to provide for Congressional disapproval of reports submitted under title IV, which disapproval would delay continuation of MFN treatment, delay further participation in United States credit, or guarantee programs and preclude conclusion of a bilateral agreement under sec. 405;

Requiring the International Trade Commission to establish and maintain a program to monitor imports and exports between the U.S. and nonmarket economy countries. The Commission is required to publish a summary of data collected under the program not less than one each calendar quarter and transmit such publication to Congress;

Providing that, for purposes of generalized preferences, those members of an association of countries which constitute a free trade or customs union and which are not otherwise ineligible for designation as beneficiary developing countries may be treated as one country. "Country" is defined to also include any overseas dependent territory or possession of a foreign country, or the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. The comparable provision of the House bill provides that any association of countries for trade purposes, no member of which is otherwise barred from designation as a beneficiary developing country, could be treated as one country for purposes of GSP. The House provision also includes within the definition of country any insular possession of the United States. The second Senate amendment assures insular possessions no less favorable treatment than that afforded articles imported from beneficiary countries;

The House bill provided several discretionary criteria which the President was required to consider in designating beneficiary developing countries, including whether a country had nationalized United States-owned property without payment of prompt, adequate, and effective compensation. The Senate bill deleted this nationalization criterion from the discretionary considerations (and added it to the mandatory exclusions), and added a discretionary criterion based on the extent to which a country has assured the United States of equitable and reasonable access to its markets and basic commodity resources;

Exempting from the exclusion of countries party to arrangements to withhold vital supplies of commodities or to raise the price of vital commodities to an unreasonable of countries party to arrangements to withhold vital supplies of countries which enter into agreements contemplated under sec. 108, and are not in violation of such agreements;

The House bill terminates preferential treatment for a particular article from a particular country (1) whenever the value of United States imports of such article from such country exceed $25 million in any calendar year, or (2) whenever imports of such article from such country exceed 50 percent of the value of total United States imports of the article for any calendar year. The House bill provided that these limitations could be waived by the President for reasons of national interest.

The Senate bill amends these limitation provisions by inserting a formula by which the $25 million ceiling changes annually in proportion to annual changes in United States GNP compared with 1974 GNP, and by exempting from the 50 percent limit articles for which no like or directly competitive articles is being produced in the United States on the date of enactment. The Senate bill also restricts the President's authority to waive the $25 million and 50 percent ceilings to countries with respect to which the following conditions exist: (1) there has been an historical preferential trade relationship between the United States and such country, (2) there is a treating or trade agreement in force covering economic relations between the United States and such country, and (3) such country does not discriminate against, or impose unjustifiable or unreasonable barriers to, United States commerce. The Senate amendment also adds clarifying provisions with respect to the termination of a country's beneficiary status, and the redesignation of beneficiary countries whose status has been terminated;

The House bill states that it is the sense of Congress that effective international cooperation is required to end illicit production, smuggling, trafficking in, and abuse of dangerous drugs. In order to promote such cooperation the President is required to embargo trade and investment with any nation when the President determines that such nation has failed to take adequate steps to prevent narcotics and other controlled substances produced or processed in or transported through such nation from entering the United States unlawfully. This section also requires that such suspension shall continue until the President determines that the Government of such nation has taken adequate steps to carry out the purposes of this section. The Senate amendment substitutes for the House language the requirement that the President shall submit a report to Congress each year listing those foreign countries in which narcotic drugs and controlled substances are produced, processed, or transported for unlawful entry into the United States and states that such report shall include a description of the measures such countries are taking to prevent such production, processing, or transport;

Adding a new section to the House bill stating that no person shall be liable for damages, penalties, or other sanctions under the Federal Trade Commission Act or the Antitrust Acts (or any similar State law) on account of his negotiating, entering into, participating in, or implementing an arrangement, (of modification or renewal thereof) providing for the voluntary limitation on exports of steel and steel products to the United States, if such arrangement was undertaken before the date of enactment of this Act at the request of the Secretary of State and ceases to be effective not later than Jan. 1, 1975;

Amending sec. 321 of the Tariff Act of 1930 to increase the duty-free tourist exemption for mail gift items to the United States from American Samoa, Guam, or the Virgin Islands from $10 to $20 retail value. The House recedes;

Providing that in the case of any protest under sec. 514 of the Tariff Act of 1930 involving the imposition of an import surcharge in the form of a supplementary duty pursuant to Presidential action on Aug. 17, 1971, the time for review and allowing or denying the protest shall not expire until 5 years after the date the protest was filed in accordance with such sec. 514; and

Stating that it is the sense of Congress that the United States should enter into a trade agreement with Canada guaranteeing continued stability to the economies of the United States and Canada and that in order to promote such stability the President is authorized to initiate negotiations for a trade agreement with Canada to establish a free trade area covering the United States and Canada. Any agreement entered into must be reciprocal. It is required that nothing in this section shall be construed as prior approval of any legislation which may be necessary to implement such an agreement.

Senate Amendments Modified:

Stating the purposes of the bill, the House receded with the following amendment:

The purposes of this Act, are, through trade agreements affording mutual benefits,

(1) to foster the economic growth of and full employment in the United States and to strengthen economic relations between the United States and foreign countries through open and nondiscriminatory world trade;

(2) to harmonize, reduce and eliminate barriers to trade on a basis which assures substantially equivalent competitive opportunities for the commerce of the United States;

(3) to establish fairness and equity in international trading relations, including reform of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade;

(4) to provide adequate procedures to safeguard American industry and labor against unfair or injurious import competition, and to assist industries, firms, workers and communities to adjust to changes in international trade flows;

(5) to open up market opportunities for United States commerce in nonmarket economies; and

(6) to provide fair and reasonable access to products of less developed countries in the United States market;

Authorizing the President to proclaim tariff reductions, modified by providing that no reduction limitations are placed on rates which are 5 percent ad valorem or less on Jan. 1, 1975, and duty reductions of up to 60 percent of the rate existing on Jan. 1, 1975, if that rate is over 5 percent ad valorem, are authorized;

The House bill authorized the President during the 5-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of the bill to enter into trade agreements to eliminate or reduce nontariff barriers if he finds that such barriers of any foreign country or the United States are unduly burdening or restraining the foreign trade of the United States. The Senate amendment retains these provisions but further authorizes the President to enter into agreements if he finds that nontariff barriers are adversely affecting the U.S. economy, and to enter agreements to harmonize such barriers or to provide for the prohibition or limitation on the imposition of such barriers. The House bill also provided that a principal negotiating objective in entering into trade agreements is to obtain with respect to each product sector of manufacturing and to the agricultural sector competitive opportunities for U.S. exports to the developed countries which are equivalent to the opportunities afforded similar foreign products in U.S. markets, and also required the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, together with the Secretaries of Agriculture and Commerce and after consultation with the Advisory Committees, to define appropriate sectors of manufacturing;

The Senate amendment deleted the statement of negotiation objectives and the matter relating to the definition of manufacturing sectors and included related provisions in a separate new section of the bill. The House bill required the President to consult with the Ways and Means and Finance Committees before entering into any trade agreement regarding nontariff barriers and provided that no such agreement, if entered into by the President, which changes domestic law shall enter into force and effect unless (1) the procedure specified in the bill relating to the

The Senate amendment provided that before the President enters into any negotiations for a trade agreement, he must report separately to Congress each subject matter area of U.S. law and administrative practice which he intends to effect under such agreement, and such negotiations may be undertaken with respect to each subject matter area only if negotiation of such area is approved by Congress by resolution. The Senate amendment further requires the President to consult with all appropriate committees of Congress before entering into any such agreement and provides that no agreement (whether or not it would result in any change to domestic law) shall enter into force and effect unless the President appropriately notifies the Congress of his intention to enter into such an agreement transmits to Congress a copy of the agreement, a draft bill to implement the agreement, and other relevant information, and the implementing bill is enacted into law; The Senate amendment also authorizes the President to recommend to Congress in any such implementing bill that the benefits and obligations of the nontariff barrier agreement be limited to the signatories to the agreement and that the agreement distinguish between the benefits and obligations applicable to different classes of signatories. Section 102 of the House bill set forth certain restrictions on converting, pursuant to a trade agreement entered into under sec. 102, nontariff barriers of the United States to tariff rates which afford substantially equivalent protection. The Senate amendment deleted these restrictions. The House bill included the American selling price basis of customs evaluation within the definition of barrier for purposes of the section. The Senate amendment included the House definition and defines "distortion" as including any subsidy and defines "international trade" as including trade in both goods and services. The House recedes, with amendments which (1) delete the provision under which the President, in addition to the general consultations required with respect to the effect of proposed amendments, must report to Congress with respect to each subject matter area of United States law affected by negotiations and must have further specific approval prior to entering into negotiations which affect specified areas (consumer protection, employee health and safety, labor standards, or environmental standards); and (2) deletes the requirement that an employment impact statement be submitted with each implementing bill;
	Setting forth a sector negotiation objective for trade agreements containing essentially the same provisions as the House bill except that it applies the sector negotiating objective to agreements entered into under the basic trade agreement authority as well as to nontariff barrier agreements, requiring negotiations to be conducted on the basis of appropriate product sectors to the extent consistent with maximizing the overall economic benefit to the United States, and requiring the President, if he determines that competitive opportunities in any product sector will be significantly affected by a trade agreement, to submit to Congress an analysis of the extent to which the agreement achieves the objective with respect to that sector. The requirement for such an analysis is in lieu of the provisions of the House bill which requires the President to include, when submitting a nontariff trade barrier agreement to Congress, a sector by sector analysis of the extent to which the negotiating objective has been achieved. The House recedes with an amendment, striking the phrase "and consistent with the provisions of sec. 103," (the overall negotiating objective);

Providing that if the President determines that bilateral trade agreements will effectively promote the economic growth of the United States, then a principal negotiating objective of the bill shall be to enter into bilateral trade agreements providing for mutually advantageous economic benefits. The House recedes with a clarifying amendment, deleting the word "principal" qualifying negotiating objective;

Setting forth as a principal U.S. negotiating objective the entering into of trade agreements which promote the economic growth of both developing countries and the United States and the mutual expansion of market opportunities. The House recedes with an amendment, deleting the word "principal" qualifying negotiating objective;

Providing that tariff reductions proclaimed pursuant to a trade agreement could not be staged in less than 15 annual installments or by annual reductions of a maximum of 3 percent ad valorem, or one-fifteenth, whichever is greater; and that such staging limitations do not apply in cases where the total reduction of duty is 10 percent or less of the rate before reduction. Senate amendments required that duty reductions be staged in equal installments over a period of 10 years and in cases where duty reductions are less than 20 percent ad valorem, the duty may be reduced by a maximum of 2 percent ad valorem per year. Under the conference agreement, the 10-year staging limitation contained in the Senate amendment is adopted, but annual reductions of up to 3 percent ad valorem or one-tenth of the total, whichever is greater are authorized;

The House bill directed the President to take such action as may be necessary to bring trade agreements into conformity with principles of promoting the development of open, nondiscriminatory, and fair world economic systems, including the revision of decisionmaking procedures in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT); the revision of article XIX of GATT into a truly international safeguard mechanism; the extension of GATT articles to conditions of trade not presently covered; the adoption of international fair labor standards and of public petition and confrontation procedures in the GATT; the revision of GATT articles with respect to the treatment of border adjustments for internal taxes; and the revision of balance-of-payments provisions in the GATT. Senate amendments added to the principles specified in the House provision the following additional trade principles:

(1) access to supplies, including rules governing export controls, denial of supplies and consultations on supply shortages;

(2) the extension of GATT to deal with countries which deny goods and thereby injure the international community;

(3) any revisions necessary to establish regular consultations;

(4) elimination of special reverse preferences;

(5) flexible monetary mechanisms;

(6) code on subsidies and foreign investment incentives;

(7) agreements on extraterritorial application of national laws; and

(8) revisions to establish with the GATT an international agreement on footwear;

Another Senate amendment added a provision requiring the President, to the extent feasible, to enter into agreements with foreign countries to establish the principles set forth above with respect to international trade between the United States and such countries. Another Senate amendment provided that no agreements to implement the principles of sec. 121 shall take effect unless legislation implementing those principles is enacted by Congress. Another Senate amendment added to the provision in the House bill authorizing appropriations for payment by the United States of its share of expenses to GATT a proviso that such authorization does not imply approval or disapproval by Congress of all articles of the GATT. The House recedes with respect to all the Senate amendments except the amendments relating to flexible monetary mechanisms relating to the extraterritorial application of national laws, from which the Senate recedes;

The House bill provides authority for the President to take certain import restraining actions in order to deal with large and serious United States balance-of-payment deficits, to prevent depreciation of the dollar in foreign exchange markets, and to cooperate in correcting international balance-of-payments disequilibrium. The Senate amendment amended the House provision to require the President to take such action in order to deal with such deficit and extends the effective period of any presidential action to 180 days (150 days under the House bill) unless such period is extended by Act of Congress. Another Senate amendment permits the President to refrain from taking action under sec. 122(a) if such action would be contrary to the national interest. The House recedes with an amendment providing for the 150-day effective period contained in the House bill;

The House bill gives the President authority to compensate foreign countries for increases in United States tariffs or other import restrictions when the United States is obligated to pay such compensation for trade restrictions imposed pursuant to an import relief finding under sec. 203 of this bill. The Senate amendment prohibits the entering into any agreement under sec. 123 with any foreign country if such country has violated trade concessions of benefit to the United States and such violation has not been adequately offset by action of the United States or by such country. The House recedes with an amendment making the application of the Senate amendment effective at the discretion of the President, rather than mandatory;

Adding to sec. 126 of the House bill, which sets forth termination and withdrawal authority of the United States with respect to trade agreements, a new subsection (d) which requires the President to withdraw, suspend, or modify trade agreement concessions whenever a foreign country withdraws, suspends, or modifies the application of trade agreement obligations of benefit to the United States without granting adequate compensation. The House recedes with an amendment which makes action by the President under the Senate amendment discretionary rather than mandatory;

	Amending the section of the House bill which applies the principle of nondiscriminatory treatment to all products of foreign countries to require the President to determine after conclusion of all negotiations entered into under the bill, or at the close of the 5-year period after its effective date whether any major industrial country (defined by another Senate amendment to mean Canada, the European Economic Community, each nation in such Community, Japan, and any other country designated by the President) has failed to make concessions under trade agreements providing competitive opportunities for United States commerce in that country which are substantially equivalent to competitive opportunities provided by the United States under trade agreements for the commerce of such country in the United States. Another Senate amendment provides that if the President determines that any major industrial country has not made such concessions, he shall (1) proclaim the termination of United States concessions, or refrain from proclaiming such concessions, with respect to that country of articles thereof; and (2) recommend to Congress that any legislation necessary to carry out a trade agreement relating to nontariff barriers shall not apply to such country. The House recedes with respect to the first Senate amendment with an amendment restricting the President's determination of whether a major industrialized country has made concessions providing substantially equivalent competitive opportunities for the commerce of the United States to trade agreements entered into under this Act. The House recedes with respect to the second Senate amendment with an amendment which deletes the President's authority to proclaim the termination of, or to refrain from proclaiming, trade agreement benefits to foreign countries failing to make reciprocal concessions and provides that the President shall recommend to the Congress any legislation necessary to restore the balance of competitive opportunities; and recedes with respect to the last Senate amendment; The House bill contained a requirement (in sec. 163(a)) that the President submit to the Congress an annual report on the trade agreements program and on import relief and adjustment assistance. Under the Senate amendment, the annual report is to include additional specified information. The House recedes with an amendment which deletes from such additional specified information with respect to the estimated effect under the program on employment and consumers; Adding a new chapter providing: (1) the United States Tariff Commission is renamed as the "United States International Trade Commission", (2) the membership is increased from 6 to 7 commissioners (no more than 4 from the same political party), (3) the term of office of commissioner is increased from 6 to 14 years, with one term expiring every other year, (4) an individual who has served for more than 7 years after the date of the enactment of the bill will be ineligible for reappointment, (5) the chairman and vice chairman positions are to rotate, with assignment as such normally determined by seniority, (6) the pay of the commissioners is up-graded, (7) the voting record of the commissioners is to be published, (8) the Commission is to be represented in court by its own attorneys or, at the request of the Commission, by the Attorney General of the United States, and

	(9) the Commission is given an independent budget, and appropriations for the Commission for each fiscal year are authorized.
	The House recedes with the following amendments:
	(1) the Commission membership remains at six with an understanding that the commissioners shall, to the maximum extent feasible avoid tie votes; (2) each Commissioner will serve for one 9-year term (rather than 14 years). The House recedes from the Senate amendment with a modification to require the Commission Chairmanship to rotate every 18 months, beginning June 1975.
	The House recedes from Senate amendment to upgrade Commissioners' pay and to require voting records to be published. The Conference agreement permits the Commission to represent itself in judicial proceedings relative to its own functions, whereas the Attorney General would represent the Commission in judicial proceedings involving matters of Presidential decision. The House recedes from the Senate amendment requiring the Commission's budget to be submitted directly to Congress, rather than through OMB, beginning in 1976, with approval of both the Senate Finance and House Committee on Ways and Means;
	The House bill provides that in determining the domestic industry producing an article like or directly competitive with an imported article, the Tariff Commission may (1) in the case of a domestic producer which also imports, treat as part of such domestic industry only its domestic production, and (2) in the case of a domestic producer which produces more than one article, treat as part of such domestic industry only that portion or subdivision of the producer which produces the like or directly competitive article. The Senate amendment adds to the House language a third standard under which the Commission may, in the case of a domestic producer located in a major geographic area of the U.S. and serving a market in that area, treat as part of such domestic industry only that segment of the producer which is located in the area. The House recedes with an amendment authorizing the Tariff Commission to treat as a domestic industry only the segment of the national production that is produced in a major geographic area if (1) the production in such area constitute a substantial portion of the national industry, (2) such producers serve primarily the market of such major geographic area and (3) imports are concentrated in such geographic area.
	The House bill provided that the President, after receiving an affirmative finding of import injury from the Tariff Commission, shall evaluate the extent to which adjustment assistance has, or can be, made available to workers and firms in the injured domestic injury and may direct the Secretaries of Labor and Commerce to give expeditious consideration to petitions for adjustments assistance, and may provide import relief to the industry pursuant to sec. 203 of the bill. The House provision required the President to make a determination whether to provide such import relief within 60 days after receipt of the Commission's affirmative finding, and to notify Congress immediately if he determined not to provide such relief. The Senate amendment changed the House provision in that (1) if an affirmative injury finding is made by the Commission, the President is required to provide import relief, and (2) if the Commission recommends the provision of adjustment assistance along with its finding, the President is to direct the Secretaries of Commerce and Labor to give expeditious consideration to assistance petitions. The Senate amendment further required the President, within 60 days after receiving an affirmative finding of injury (1) to determine what method and amount of import relief he will provide and whether he will direct expeditious consideration of adjustment assistance petitions (and publish in the Federal Register that he has made such determination); and (2) publish his order to the Secretaries of Labor and Commerce directing them to give such expeditious consideration, if the Tariff Commission recommends the provision of adjustment assistance. The House recedes with an amendment under which, after receiving an affirmative determination of injury (or threat thereof) the President shall (in addition to recommending whatever adjustment assistance that he deems advisable): (1) provide import relief as recommended by the Commission; (2) provide such other import relief as he deems appropriate; provided however, if he determines it is not in the national economic interest, he may provide no import relief. However, if the President does not provide any import relief (because he determines it is not in the national economic interest) or if he provides relief other than recommended by the Commission he must report his reasons to the Congress, and the Congress by an approval of a concurrent resolution under the procedures established by sec. 151 may provide import relief, as recommended by the Commission, or otherwise. The House bill permits the President, within 15 days after receiving an affirmative finding of injury by the Tariff Commission, to request additional information from the Commission. The Commission in not less than 30 days after such request (60 days in the case extensive additional information is requested) is required to furnish such information. The first Senate amendment requires the President to request additional information within 15 days after receiving the finding and the second Senate amendment deletes the additional 30 day period allowed under the House provision for Tariff Commission report in the case of extensive information. The House recedes with respect to the first amendment and the Senate recedes with respect to the second amendment; Deleting the section of the House bill which requires the President to report to Congress when he selects a method or methods of providing import relief (including a statement as to why he selected a method of relief over methods ranking higher in preference under sec. 203(a) of the House bill and over the provision of adjustment assistance), and provides instead that on the day the President proclaims import relief or announces his intention to negotiate orderly marketing agreements, he shall transmit to Congress a document setting forth the kind of action taken by him, and if such action differs from that recommended by the Tariff Commission in its affirmative finding, the reason for such difference. House recedes with an amendment as follows: (2) On the day on which the President determines that the provision of import relief is not in the national economic interest of the United States, the President shall transmit to Congress a document setting forth such determination and the reasons why, in terms of the national economic interest, he is not providing import relief and also what other steps he is taking, beyond adjustment assistance programs immediately available to help the industry to overcome serious injury and the workers to find productive employment.

	Under the House bill, the trade adjustment allowance payable to and adversely affected worker for a week of unemployment shall be (1) for any week in the first 26 weeks of such allowances 70 percent of his average weekly wage, and (2) any subsequent week of such allowances 65 percent of his average weekly wage. The Senate amendment provides that for any week of allowance, the allowance shall be 75 percent of his average weekly wage. Under both House and Senate versions, no weekly allowance may exceed the average weekly manufacturing wage and each weekly allowance is reduced by 50 percent of the amount of the remuneration for services performed by him during such week. The House recedes with an amendment providing that the allowance shall be 70 percent of the worker's average weekly wage for the entire 52 weeks of entitlement;
	Authorizing the appropriation (for purposes of training under sec. 236 of the bill) $30,000,000 for fiscal year 1975 and such sums as are necessary for the 5 succeeding fiscal years. No separate authorization for training was contained in the House bill. The House recedes with an amendment eliminating the specified $30,000,000 limitation on appropriations for fiscal year 1975, and an amendment authorizing necessary appropriations for the 7 succeeding fiscal years after fiscal year 1975, thereby conforming the appropriation authorization to the conference agreement on the date of termination of all adjustment assistance programs;
	Creating a new program of adjustment assistance for communities adversely affected by imports. A community, group of communities, or Governor of a State on behalf of a community or communities may file a petition with the Secretary of Commerce for certification of eligibility to apply for community adjustment assistance. The Secretary must certify a community eligible to apply if he determines: (a) a significant number or proportion of workers in the trade impacted area where the community is located are or are threatened to become totally or partially unemployed; (b) sales and/or production of firms in the trade impacted area have decreased absolutely; and (c) increased import of articles like or directly competitive with those produced by the firms or the transfer of firms from the trade impacted area to foreign countries have contributed importantly to (a) and (b).
	Benefits can be extended only if the Secretary approves the adjustment assistance plan. Adjustment assistance for qualified communities consists of:
	All forms of assistance other than loan guarantees, as provided a redevelopment area under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 ("PWEDA") and loan guarantees with a termination date of Sept. 30, 1982, as expressly provided in the Trade Act. Under the PWEDA the Secretary of Commerce is authorized to provide assistance to attract new investment and to create additional long term employment opportunities in the area in the form of:
	(1) direct grants for acquisition and development of land and improvements for public works, public service, or development facilities, including authority for additional grants to areas of substantial unemployment;
	(2) loans to purchase land and facilities for such purposes as constructing, modernizing, and expanding plant facilities; and
	(3) technical assistance which would be useful in alleviating or preventing excessive unemployment or underemployment.

Loan guarantees for working capital and for the acquisition or improvement of plant facilities may be made to private borrowers by private lending institutions are subject to the same terms and conditions as under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965,

The Senate amendment imposed two major conditions upon applicants for loan guarantees: first that officials of the state or locality or both pledge such portion of a future revenue sharing entitlement as necessary to cover fifty percent of any deficiency arising from a default, and second, in the case of corporations, that an amount of stock equal to twenty-five percent of the amount guaranteed be paid by the lender into a trust which is part of an employee stock ownership plan established and maintained solely by the corporation. The House bill contained no such provisions. The House recedes with the following amendments:

First, delete the word "absolute" so as to permit the Secretary to issue certifications whenever he determines that increases of imports, whether absolute or relative, have contributed importantly to the total or partial separation of workers and to the decline in sales or production, of firms, or threat thereof, in the affected area.

Second, extend the expiration on date of the community program from Sept. 30, 1980, to Sept. 30, 1982.

Third, in place of the Senate bill's provisions on joint liability for loan guarantees provide that the Governor of the State, the authorized representative of the community, or both, in which an applicant for a loan guarantee is located may enter into an agreement providing that such State or community or both will pay one half of the amount of any liability arising from the loan guarantee, if the State in which the applicant has established by law a program approved by the Secretary for such purpose. It is the understanding of the managers that an amendment to the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 to include such a use of funds among the enumerated purposes for which funds may be applied under that Act will be considered in 1977 when that legislation is considered for renewal.

Fourth, provide that when considering loan guarantees for qualified corporations, the Secretary shall give preference to corporations which have, or undertake to establish a qualified employee stock ownership plan established and maintained solely by the corporation.

Requiring the Comptroller General to conduct a study, assisted by the Departments of Labor and Commerce, of the worker, firm and community adjustment assistance programs. The study by the General Accounting Office, among other things, will evaluate: (1) the effectiveness of the programs in aiding adjustment to import competition and, (2) the coordination of the administration of the programs with other government programs providing unemployment compensation and relief to depressed areas. The report is to be submitted to the Congress by Jan. 30, 1979. The House bill contained no similar provision. The House recedes with an amendment requiring that the report be submitted to the Congress no later than Jan. 31, 1980, instead of Jan. 30, 1979;

Requiring the Secretaries of Commerce and Labor to establish and maintain a program to monitor imports of articles which will reflect changes in the volume of such imports, the relation of such imports to changes in relevant domestic production and employ-neal, and the extent to which such changes in production and employment are concentrated in specific geographic regions of the country. A second provision added by the Senate required the Secretaries to gather additional information concerning the international operations of multinational corporations doing business in the United States. The information would cover direct investment by any such corporation in each foreign affiliate: gross sales, employment data, etc. The information gathered under this provision is to be published regularly. The House bill contained no such provisions. The House recedes with an amendment deleting the provision relating to information concerning the international operations of multinational corporations. It is the understanding of the managers that nothing in the remaining provision will be construed to require the tracing of articles imported into the United States to their points of sale in specific regions or areas of the country;

Requiring that every firm, prior to moving production facilities abroad, should: (1) give at least 60 days advance notice to its employees who are likely to become totally or partially unemployed; (2) at the same time give the Secretaries of Labor and Commerce notice of the move; (3) apply for and use all adjustment assistance for which it is eligible; (4) offer employment opportunities, if any exist, to its affected employees; and (5) assist in relocating employees where employment opportunities exist. The House bill contained no such provision. The House recedes with an amendment requiring that items 3, 4, and 5, above, be stated as being the sense of the Congress;

Providing that the worker firm, and community adjustment assistance provisions of title II of the Senate bill will become effective on the 90th day after the date of enactment of this Act. Under the Senate amendment such provisions would terminate on Sept. 30, 1980. The House recedes with an amendment providing that the provisions terminate on Sept. 30, 1982;

A new subsec. 205(d) to the Antidumping Act which authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to impose dumping duties when a multinational corporation operating in several foreign countries supports low-priced exports to the United States through high-priced sales by other subsidiaries located in protected markets. More specifically, when the Secretary determines that:

(1) merchandise exported to the United States is produced in facilities owned or controlled by person, firm or corporation which also owns or controls facilities producing similar merchandise in other countries;

(2) sales in the home market of the country exporting to the U.S. are nonexistent or inadequate as a basis for comparison with sales of such or similar merchandise in the United States; and

(3) sales of like or similar merchandise made in one or more of the other countries are at prices substantially higher than the prices charged for goods produced in the exporting country;

the Secretary may determine the foreign market value by looking at the higher prices (adjusted for differences in cost of production and costs incident to packing) at which such like or similar goods are sold in substantial quantities by one or more of such other foreign facilities located outside the exporting country. The dumping duty could then be assessed in the amount equal to the difference between the purchase price in the United States for the exporter's sale price and the higher foreign market value of the goods not actually exported to the United States. The House bill did not contain a similar provision. The House recedes with an amendment making the Senate provision mandatory. Thus, the "may" in italics above is changed to shall.

The Senate bill contains a provision for a countervailing duty investigation to be initiated by the filing of a petition by any person setting forth his reasons for believing a bounty or grant exists, as well as at the initiative of the Secretary, which was required in the House bill. In both bills, there must be Federal Register notice of the initiation of the investigation.

The Senate bill adds a 6-month time limit for a preliminary determination and retains the House 12-month limit for a final determination. In the Senate bill, the time limit begins on the date the petition is filed or the initiation notice is published, rather than from the date the question is presented to the Secretary, as under the House bill. The Senate bill requires that countervailing duties be imposed as of the publication date of the final determination. The House bill provided that such orders would apply 30 days after publication in the Federal Register.

The Senate bill adds to the House bill's extension of the injury test to duty-free imports a change in the suspension of liquidation provision, i.e., provides for suspension in the event the Secretary determines a bounty or grant exists with respect to nondutiable imports so as to require the same effective date for imposition of countervailing duties regardless of whether the merchandise in question is dutiable. Liquidation would be suspended immediately under the Senate bill, rather than 30 days after publication of the determination, as under the House bill.

The Senate bill deletes the provision in the House bill that the imposition of a countervailing duty shall not be required on any article subject to quantitative limitations where such limitations are determined to be an adequate substitute for a countervailing duty.

The Senate bill replaces the temporary waiver provision in the House bill, applicable while negotiations are in progress, with a new discretionary provision adding an explicit Congressional mandate for the President to negotiate internationally-agreed rules and procedures governing the use of subsidies and other export incentives, and the application of countervailing duties. The Senate bill deletes the one-year carve-out in the House bill for cases where an article is produced in facilities owned or controlled by a developed country, which are subsidized. Discretion under the Senate bill in the imposition of countervailing duties is permitted during the two year, rather than the four year period, following enactment under the House bill if the Secretary determines, after seeking advice from appropriate agencies that:

(1) adequate steps have been taken to eliminate or substantially reduce the adverse effect of the bounty or grant;

(2) there is a reasonable prospect that successful trade agreements under sec. 102 will be entered into; and

(3) the imposition of countervailing duties would be likely to seriously jeopardize negotiations.

The Senate bill prohibits the waiver of otherwise mandated countervailing duties in cases involving import-sensitive items such as footwear. The House bill did not contain a similar provision.

The House bill requires only that the third condition exist for the Secretary to be able to exercise the waiver, whereas the Senate version permits the waiver only if all of the three conditions exist. Under the Senate, the Secretary may revoke his determination at any time, and must revoke it if a basis supporting such waiver no longer exists.

The Senate bill requires the Secretary of the Treasury to promptly report his determination not to impose duties and reasons therefor to both Houses of Congress. Countervailing duties will be imposed if a majority of those present and voting of either House of each Congress disapproval resolutions [illegible] sec. 152 procedures. The House bill does not contain a similar provision.

The House recedes with amendments. The discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury to waive countervailing duties under the conditions specified in the Senate provision are to be effective for a four year period following date of enactment. The prohibition against the application of the waiver will apply only with respect to nonrubber footwear imports. It is the understanding of the conferees that the requirement concerning the elimination or reduction of adverse effects in the waiver provision is not to be construed as the intent of Congress that this language inject an injury concept into countervailing duty cases regarding durable goods, nor that the President negotiate, in every case, orderly marketing agreements with countries who are subsidizing exports to the United States in order to avoid the imposition of countervailing duties through use of such waiver;

The Senate bill provides that for purposes of applying the provisions of sec. 303(a)(4) re time limits on preliminary and final determinations with respect to any countervailing duty investigation initiated before the date of enactment, such investigation shall be considered initiated on the day after such date of enactment. The amendment further provided that Secretary's final determination on all countervailing complaints filed more than 6 months before enactment will be reached within six months after enactment. The House recedes with respect to the first provision relating to sec. 303(a)(4) of the Tariff Act of 1930 as amended. The Senate recedes with respect to the second provision relating to complaints filed more than 6 months before enactment, with the understanding that sec. 321(a) of the Senate bill is adequate to subject pending complaints to the time limits of the countervailing duty statutes, as now amended;

Extensively revises sec. 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930, relating to unfair import practices, so as to vest solely in the International Trade Commission (subject to Presidential intervention for policy reasons only) final authority to exclude articles concerned in all unfair methods of import competition under sec. 337, and to make other changes relating to the disposition of such cases. The House recedes with one amendment, striking the Senate provision requiring the International Trade Commission to consider, in cases based upon claims of U.S. letters patents, price gouging;

Providing that no nonmarket economy country may receive nondiscriminatory treatment or participate in a program under which the U.S. extends credit, credit guarantees, or investment guarantees, and no commercial agreement between the U.S. and any such country may enter into effect, during any period in which the President determines that such country is not cooperating with the U.S. to account for all U.S. personnel missing in action in Southeast Asia, to repatriate such personnel who are alive, and to return the remains of such personnel who are dead.

The amendment further provides that any such country may receive such treatment and participate in such program, and that any such agreement shall enter into effect, if the President submits a report to Congress indicating that such country is so cooperating. Such report must include information on the nature of the cooperating and semiannual reports on the degree of cooperation by that country is required for so long as the nondiscriminatory treatment and credit or guarantees, or any such agreement, is in effect. The amendment does not apply to countries eligible for column 1 tariff treatment. The House recedes with an amendment which authorizes the President to deny the extension of most favored nation treatment, credits and guarantees, to countries which he determines are not cooperating with the United States in achieving the objectives of the Senate amendment. The President's reports to Congress would relate generally to compliance of countries involved in the MIA problem;

Substantially revising the House bill section under which petitions may be filed with the International Trade Commission regarding products of countries receiving nondiscriminatory treatment under title IV of the bill to determine whether such products are causing market disruption and material injury to U.S. industries producing like or directly competitive articles. Under the Senate amendment—

(1) the Commission must determine whether market disruption exists with respect to an article produced by a domestic industry;

(2) market disruption is found to exist within a domestic industry whenever an article is being or is likely to be imported into the United States in such increased quantities as to be a significant cause of material injury or threat thereof to such industry (under the House language disruption exists whenever imports of a like or directly competitive article are substantial, are increasing rapidly both absolutely and relative to total domestic consumption, and are offered at prices substantially below those of comparable domestic article);

(3) disruption determinations are made with respect to the products of any country dominated or controlled by Communism rather than, as under the House version, only countries to which nondiscriminatory treatment has been extended under title IV;

(4) certain procedural and hearing requirements applicable to import relief determination under title II are made applicable;

(5) reduces the time limit for market disruption investigations from 6 months to 3 months;

(6) prohibits the Commission from recommending adjustment assistance in such cases;

(7) requires the President to impose import relief after an affirmative finding of market disruption;

(8) prohibits the President from applying import relief measures to imports other than those from the particular country involved in the affirmative determination;

(9) requires the President to initiate an investigation if he finds reasonable grounds that market disruption exists;

(10) authorizes the President to take emergency relief action under sec. 201 and 203; and

(11) provides that petitions may be filed with the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations requesting that consultations provided for under safeguard arrangements contained in bilateral agreements with Communist countries be initiated.

The House recedes with amendments which (1) provide that petitions requesting consultations under safeguard arrangements be submitted to the President rather than to the Special Trade Representative, and (2) to redefine market disruption to exist whenever imports of a like or directly competitive article are increasing rapidly both absolutely and as a proportion of total domestic consumption, and such imports are causing or are likely to cause material injury to a domestic industry. The conferees understand that foreign entities would not be eligible to petition for relief under either sec. 201 or sec. 406;

Adding a new section to the bill which provides that (1) Czechoslovakia may not receive nondiscriminatory treatment or participants in any Federal programs extending credit or credit guarantees or investment guarantees, and (2) the United States may not consent to the release to Czechoslovakia of any gold belonging to that country and controlled by the United States pursuant to the Paris Reparations Agreement of Jan. 24, 1946; until the government of Czechoslovakia pays a principal amount it owes to U.S. citizens under awards rendered against that country by the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission. The second Senate amendment provides that if Czechoslovakia continues to fail to pay such awards, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia shall have jurisdiction to determine whether Czechoslovakia owns the gold which is controlled by the United States and, upon such finding, issue orders and judgments resulting in the payment of the claims of U.S. citizens against Czechoslovakia, with any balance remaining to be paid to that country. Under the conference agreement, any bilateral agreement with Czechoslovakia extending most-favored-nation treatment must include a renegotiation of the claims settlement. However, a more equitable claims settlement may be renegotiated prior to submission of a commercial agreement. The conferees intend that there be a speedy renegotiation of a claims settlement by individuals other than those who negotiated the unreasonable first tentative agreement. No further government credits may be extended to Czechoslovakia until the claims settlement is renegotiated and approved by Congress.

Also, the United States shall not release any gold to Czechoslovakia until the claims settlement is approved.

Adding a new section to the bill which provides that no nonmarket economy country may receive nondiscriminatory treatment or participate in a program under which the United States extends credit, credit guarantees, or investment guarantees, and no commercial agreement between the United States and any such country may be concluded, during any period in which the President determines that such country has failed to enter into an agreement with the United States providing for a mutual exchange of information on production, consumption, and demand of major agricultural commodities, or after entering into such an agreement fails to fulfill it. The amendment further provides that any such country may receive such treatment and participate in such program, and that any such agreement shall enter into effect, if the President submits a report to Congress indicating that such country has entered into, and is fulfilling, such an agreement. The amendment does not apply to countries currently eligible for column 1 tariff treatment. The House recedes with an amendment which makes the application of the prohibition in this section discretionary on the part of the President. The Senate recedes, but it is the intent of the conferees that the President must determine that there has been compliance with the intent of the Senate amendment on the part of any foreign country before any bilateral commercial agreement entered into under the authority of sec. 405 of the bill including the extension of most favored nation treatment with that country is renewed. Under the bill, all bilateral commercial agreements must be renewed every 3 years;

	Adding a new section to the bill to prohibit the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment and credits, and the concluding of any commercial agreement, with any nonmarket economy country during any period in which the President finds that such country denies its citizens freedom to emigrate to join any close relative living in the United States, or takes other action to dissuade such emigration. The second amendment No. 330 added a new sec. 410 to the bill the intent of which was to provide that during any period in which a waiver is in effect for any country under sec. 402(c) of the bill (waiver of prohibition against nonmarket countries which restrict emigration in East-West trade) such waiver shall also apply to that country for purposes of sec. 411. The House recedes with amendments (1) making conforming amendments necessary to apply the waiver provisions of sec. 410 to 411, and (2) exempting countries entitled to column 1 tariff treatment on the date of the enactment of the bill from the application of sec. 411. By including sec. 411, as amended, in the bill, the Conferees intend to underscore the high importance attached to the right and opportunity to emigrate for the purpose of reuniting close relatives with their families in the United States. The Conferees, however, do not intend to change or affect in any way the provisions of the "Jackson-Vanik amendment," which also deals with freedom of emigration, or to imply that any additional requirements are inserted. Indeed, the purpose of the Conferee's modifications is to bring the coverage of this amendment into complete harmony with the "Jackson-Vanik amendment." The amendment, as amended, accordingly will not substantively go beyond the coverage of the Jackson-Vanik amendment, but the Conferees recommend its inclusion as a means of emphasizing this particular aspect of the general area covered by the Jackson-Vanik amendment;
	Establishing within the Executive Branch an East-West Foreign Trade Board to coordinate and oversee the orderly development of trade with nonmarket countries. The Board would be empowered to review East-West transactions involving U.S. Government credits or investment guarantees in excess of $5 million or involving the transfer of technology deemed vital to the U.S. national interest and persons contemplating such transactions would be required to file reports with the Board not less than 30 days before entering into the agreement. The amendment requires the Board to make a determination that any such transaction is in the national interest. Transactions involving more than $50 million which are determined by the Board to be in the national interest would be made subject to Congressional veto under section 172. The Board generally would be charged with oversight and review of U.S. relations with Communist countries. The House recedes with the following amendment:

SEC. 411. East-West Foreign Trade Board.

(a) The President shall establish an East-West Foreign Trade Board (hereinafter referred to as the "Board") to monitor trade between persons and agencies of the United States Government and nonmarket economy countries or instrumentalities of such countries to insure that such trade will be in the national interest of the United States.

(b)(1) Any person who exports technology vital to the national interest of the United States to a nonmarket economy country or an instrumentality of such country, and any agency of the United States which provides credits, guarantees or insurance to such country or such instrumentality in an amount in excess of $5,000,000 during any calendar year, shall file a report with the Board in such form and manner as the Board requires which describes the nature and terms of such export or such provision.

(2) For purposes of para. (1), if the total amount of credits, guarantees and insurance which an agency of the United States provides to all nonmarket economy countries and the instrumentalities of such countries exceeds $5,000,000 during a calendar year, then all subsequent provisions of credits, guarantees or insurance in any amount, during such year shall be reported to the Board under the provisions of para. (1).

(c) The Board shall submit to Congress a quarterly report on trade between the United States and nonmarket economy countries and instrumentalities of such countries. Such report shall include a review of the status of negotiations of bilateral trade agreements between the United States and such countries under this title, the activities of joint trade commissions created pursuant to such agreements, the resolution of commercial disputes between the United States and such countries, any exports from such countries which have caused disruption of U.S. markets, and recommendations for the promotion of east-west trade in the national interest of the United States;

The House bill lists 20 countries which were expressly ineligible for designation as beneficiary developing countries, and in addition, expressly excluded countries which do not receive most-favored-nation treatment and countries which afford other developed countries reverse preferences, unless the President was assured to his satisfaction that such preferences would be eliminated before Jan. 1, 1976. The Senate bill retained the list of 20 excluded countries, but added the following categories of countries which also are ineligible for preferential treatment:

(1) communist countries, except those which receive MFN treatment, are contracting parties to the GATT and members of the IMF, and are not "dominated or controlled by international communism". This exception is intended to apply only to Yugoslavia and Romania;

(2) members of OPEC or other arrangements the effect of which is to withhold supplies of vital resources from international trade or to raise prices unreasonably causing disruption of the world economy;

(3) countries affording reverse preferences to other developed countries, which have a significant adverse effect on U.S. commerce, unless the President receives assurances satisfactory to him that such reverse preferences or the adverse effect will be eliminated before Jan. 1, 1976;

(4) countries which have nationalized U.S.-owned property without compensation, negotiation, or arbitration;

(5) countries failing to take adequate steps to prevent drugs from entering the United States from such country illegally; and

(6) countries failing to recognize or enforce arbitral awards not favored of U.S. citizens or businesses preferentially owned by U.S. citizens.

The House recedes with the following amendment:

(1) A country which is a member of OPEC or another cartel-type arrangement will be denied preferential treatment if it takes any action to withhold supplies of vital commodity resources from international trade or to raise the price of such commodities to an unreasonable level. The purpose of this provision is to deny tariff preferences to OPEC members or other cartel countries which cause serious disruption of the world economy.

(2) The mandatory exclusions for nationalization, drug traffic, and failure to recognize arbitral awards are subject to a waiver by the President for reasons of national economic interest. The President must report to the Congress the reasons for not excluding such countries.

Modifying the provisions of the House bill with respect to articles eligible for preferential tariff treatment. The House bill provides that value added in a beneficiary country from which the article is directly imported be not less than 35 percent and not more than 50 percent, as prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury; this is modified to require that, in the case of a single beneficiary country, at least 35 percent of the value of the article be added in such country and in the case of an association of countries treated as one beneficiary country, at least 50 percent of the value of the article be added in countries that are members of the association. The amendment also excludes imports of textile and apparel articles subject to textile agreements, watches, import-sensitive electronic articles and import-sensitive steel articles, specified footwear articles, semimanufactured and manufactured glass products and other articles determined by the President to be import sensitive in the context of generalized preferences from eligibility for preferential tariff treatment.

The House recedes, with the amendment to add the words "import-sensitive" before semimanufactured and manufactured glass be excluded from eligibility for preferential treatment;

Amending sec. 484(e) of the Tariff Act of 1930 to require the Secretaries of the Treasury and Commerce and the International Trade Commission to establish a single enumeration of articles for import and export purposes, and to seek to provide comparability of statistics on domestic production with such enumeration. All import entries and export declarations are to be in terms of such enumeration.

The House recedes with an amendment which would require the Secretary of Commerce and the International Trade Commission to conduct a joint study of existing commodity classification systems with a view to identifying appropriate principles and concepts to guide the organization and development of an enumeration of articles which would permit comparability of United States import, production, and export data. A report with respect to such study is to be submitted to Congress and to the President no later than August 1, 1975. Further the International Trade Commission is to conduct an investigation under sec. 332(g) of the Tariff Act of 1930 to provide the basis for a report on the appropriate concepts and principles which should underlie the formulation of an international commodity code adaptable for modernized tariff nomenclature purposes and for recording handling, and reporting of transactions in national and international trade; such report is to be submitted no later than June 1, 1975. Also the International Trade Commission is to begin full and immediate participation in the United States contribution to technical work on the Harmonized Systems Committee under the Customs Cooperation Council.

Adding a new section to the House bill which requires the Secretary of Commerce to submit to the Ways and Means and Finance Committees, on monthly and cumulative basis, statistics on U.S. imports for consumption and U.S. exports by country and product. The amendment sets forth detailed statistical categories and requires that the value of goods and agricultural commodities exported under agricultural and foreign assistance laws, and the total amount of U.S. subsidies paid with respect to agricultural commodities, be separately reported. The Secretaries of Agriculture and State are required to furnish the Secretary of Commerce certain information related to the reporting required under this section. The House recedes with an amendment that requires quarterly and cumulative basis submission of statistics, rather than monthly and cumulative; and Providing that after the date of enactment of the bill, no Federal agency may approve any loans, guarantees, insurance, or any combination thereof in connection with exports to the Soviet Union in an aggregate amount which exceeds $300,000,000 without prior Congressional approval.

The House recedes, with an amendment exempting the Commodity Credit Corporation from the provisions of this section, and specifying that the Congressional approval of any loan, guaranty, insurance, or any combination thereof in excess of $300,000,000 must be approved as provided by law.

Approval, under the provisions of the Export-Import Bank Amendments of 1974, of any increase in the $300,000,000 limit contained in such Act on loans, guarantees, insurance, or any combination thereof shall be deemed approval of loans, guarantees, insurance, or any combination thereof in excess of $300,000,000 "as provided by law" under this Act.

Senate Amendments Rejected:

Providing that representatives from each committee established under sec. 135(c) of the bill (general policy advisory committees and industry, labor, and agricultural sector advisory committees) shall participate directly in any negotiation of any trade agreement under sec. 101 or 102 to the same extent as any representative of a comparable committee or sector participates in such negotiations on behalf of any foreign country. The Senate recedes, on the understanding that the negotiators shall inform the advisory committees of all relevant information during the negotiations;

Deleting a provision of the House bill stating that nothing in sec. 135 is intended to authorize direct participation by individuals in trade agreement negotiations;

The House bill contained a requirement that, as soon as practicable after a trade agreement entered into under ch. 1 or under the negotiation authority or the authority to renegotiate duties has entered into force with respect to the United States, the President is to transmit to each House a statement of his reasons for entering into the agreement. The Senate amendment would have included an employment impact statement setting forth in detail job losses and gains which may be expected as a result of the trade agreement;

Under the House bill the Tariff Commission, when investigating petitions for eligibility for import relief, must take into account all economic factors which it considers relevant, including, with respect to substantial cause of serious injury to domestic injury caused by imports, an increase in imports (either actual or relative to domestic production). The Senate amendments would have provided that with respect to substantial injury, the Commission should take into account only an absolute increase in imports;

Under the House bill, the Secretary of Labor shall certify groups of workers as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance if he determines, among other things, that increases of imports of articles like or directly competitive with articles produced by the workers' firm contributed importantly to the total or partial separation of the workers from employment, or to an absolute decrease in sales or production of the firm. The Senate amendment would have required the Secretary to find an absolute increase in such imports;

The House bill requires workers seeking relocation allowances to apply for these allowances before the time in which the relocation move is made. The Senate amendment would have permitted applications for such allowances to be made within a reasonable time after the move has been completed;

Adding an amendment to sec. 481 of the Tariff Act to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to require that certified import invoices, other than for special transactions, include data on: (1) all rebates, drawbacks, and bounties and grants on the merchandise; and (2) the unit price of the same or similar merchandise in the home market of the country of exports. The information would not be required if the customs officer determined it is currently available. The provision would apply to goods imported on or after the 90th day after enactment of the Act. The House bill did not contain a similar provision.

	Suspends for 6 months the prohibition against participation by SSI recipients in the food stamp program and also with respect to the commodity program, but includes a transitional provision for those States that have already acted to raise benefits to take into account the loss of food stamp eligibility.
	Limitation on Grandfather Clause for Disabled Individuals
	Limits the grandfather provision for disability to persons who had received Aid to the Disabled before July 1973 and who are on the rolls in December 1973.
	SSI Recipients Living With AFDC Families
	Permits the adjustment of the grandfather clause in such a way that it assures the same level of total family income (rather than the individual's total income) in those cases in which the SSI recipient resides with an AFDC family.
	Continuation of Demonstration Projects
	Permits the continuation of on-going demonstration projects related to the aged, blind, and disabled which qualify for Federal matching under the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act and which involve waivers by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare of some of the requirements of those titles (the new Federal SSI program which next January will replace present programs of aid to the aged, blind, and disabled does not provide for such waivers and funding of demonstration projects).
	Social Services
	Suspends HEW regulations until Dec. 31, 1974. The suspension is retroactive to Nov. 1, 1973, so that there would be no period prior to Jan. 1, 1975 when the new regulations would be in effect.

Medicare and Medicaid Amendments

MEDICAID ELIGIBILITY

Makes Federal matching available for medicaid benefits for any new SSI recipients, although coverage of these new recipients would be optional on the part of a State; makes medicaid coverage mandatory for those persons who receive a mandatory State supplemental payment in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 93-66; provides that for other persons receiving a State supplemental payment only, coverage would be optional, depending upon the State's decision, but that a State must make eligibility determinations based upon some rational classifications of recipients; and places an upper limit on the monthly income (initially $120 in the case of an individual) which an institutionalized person can have and still be "deemed" in special need and, therefore, eligible for medicaid coverage in a State without a medically indigent program.

REIMBURSEMENT OF INSTITUTIONS AND ORGANIZATIONS UNDER MEDICARE

Amends the effective date of sec. 233 of Public Law 92-603 to accounting periods beginning after Dec. 31, 1973, instead of Dec. 31, 1972.

REIMBURSEMENT OF PHYSICAL THERAPISTS UNDER MEDICARE

Makes sec. 251 of Public Law 92-603 which details the approved means of reimbursing for the services of physical therapists under medicare effective following publication of the final regulations rather than Jan. 1, 1973 as provided for by Public Law 92-603

Calls for a study by the Social Security Administration on the appropriateness of reimbursement under medicare for services performed by optometrists with respect to the provision of corrective lenses following cataract surgery.

SUPERVISORY PHYSICIANS

Directs the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to undertake a study covering all aspects related to payment for professional services in medical schools and teaching hospital settings (while the study is being undertaken, certain provisions of sec. 227 of Public Law 92-603, limiting medicare reimbursement to medical centers for the services of teaching physicians, would be suspended. However, the suspension would not apply to those hospitals which are reimbursed on a costs basis in accordance with sec. 227).

Unemployment Compensation

Permits for a 90-day period Federal matching of extended benefits in any State whose insured unemployment rate exceeds 4 percent without regard to the 120 percent requirement.

Clerical and Conforming Amendments

Includes a number of provisions of a clerical and conforming character designed to correct mistakes and oversights in the Social Security Amendments of 1972.

Rept. 93-1356) with an amendment substituting for the House bill the social services amendments approved by the Senate in November of 1973 in H.R. 3153, and incorporating two other provisions adopted in H.R. 3153; the tax credit for low-income families (work bonus) and the child support program. A brief description of the provisions follow: Social Services Provides that any increase in Federal social services funding in a State be used for an actual increase in services provided rather than to simply replace State funds now being spent on services. Also included is an illustrative list of the types of social services which may be funded. States would be free to provide other services not specifically included in this listing. Tax Credit for Low-Income Workers With Families Provides that low-income workers who have families would be eligible for a tax credit equal to a percentage of the social security taxes payable on account of their employment during the tax year (equivalent to 10 percent of their wages taxed under the social security program). The maximum tax credit would apply for families where the total income of the husband and wife is $4,000 or less. For families where the husband's and wife's total income exceeds $4,000, the credit would be equal to $400 minus one-quarter of the amount by which their total income exceeds $4,000; thus, the taxpayer would become ineligible for the credit once total income reaches $5,600 ($5,600 exceeds $4,000 by $1,600; one-quarter of $1,600 is $400, which subtracted from $400 equals zero).

H.R. 17045★—Continued	BILL REPORTED—Continued Child Support Leaves basic responsibility for child support and establishment of paternity to the State but envisions a far more active role on the part of the Federal Government in monitoring and evaluating State programs, in providing technical assistance, and, in certain instances, in undertaking to give direct assistance to the States in locating absent parents and obtaining support payments from them. Requires States to have effective programs for the collection of support and the establishment of paternity; Federal matching for these efforts would be increased from the present 50 percent to 75 percent but States not complying with the requirements would face a penalty in the form of reduced Federal matching funds for aid to families with dependent children. Makes access to support collection services available to families not on welfare as well as to those on welfare. SENATE ACTION Dec. 17, 1974.—Passed by the Senate,* by rollcall vote (No. 502) of 74 yeas, 17 nays (Congressional Record S21768) after agreeing to the committee amendment, which at first had been amended by adoption of: (1) Mondale floor amendment permitting Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands to receive social services funds to the extent that the $2.5 billion authorized is not used by the States, by voice vote (Congressional Record S21741); (2) Long amendments of a technical nature, by voice vote Congressional Record S21742); and (3) Church floor amendment providing coordination of State social services plans with State and area aging plans under the Older Americans' Act and Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, by voice vote (Congressional Record S21742). CONFERENCE ACTION Dec. 17, 1974.—Senate insisted on its amendments, requested a conference with the House, and named the following conferees: Messrs. Long, Hartke, Ribicoff, Mondale, Fannin, Hansen, and Dole. Dec. 18, 1974.—House disagreed to the Senate amendment, agreed to a conference with the Senate, and named the following conferees: Messrs. Ullman, Burke of Massachusetts, Mrs. Griffiths, Messrs. Rostenkowski, Schneebeli, Conable, and Pettis. Dec. 19, 1974.—Conference report filed in the House (H. Rept. 93-1643) with the conferees agreeing to recommend to their respective Houses that the House recede from its disagreement to the Senate amendment and agree to the same with an amendment generally following the House bill which provides the conditions for State entitlement to social services funds under a new title XX of the Social Security Act with the following exceptions: Social Services Agreed to: Senate provisions requiring that three types of services be available to recipients of supplemental security income and that family planning services be offered to each appropriate person receiving aid to families with dependent children;

*Prior to its passage, the Senate by a vote of 70 yeas, 23 nays, agreed to a motion to close further debate on the bill.

Senate provisions regarding standards for child care with respect to the ratio of adults to children of various ages and making the educational component of child care recommended rather than mandatory (in the case of children under three, the ratio is left to regulations of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare);

Senate provisions retaining provisions of existing law with respect to separate agencies which have been authorized to administer services to the blind and child welfare services;

Eliminating many of the requirements in the House bill regarding program reporting, evaluation and audit, permitting the Secretary to require reports concerning the uses of service funds which shall be the basis of his annual report to the Congress. The House provision for a hearing to the State on the issue of failure to comply under the requirements is retained and the Secretary is given the alternative of terminating payments to the State or imposing a reduction of 3% for each area of activity in which there is substantial noncompliance;

House provisions regarding maintenance of effort (clarified so that they applied only to appropriated funds and not to donated funds); and

Senate provision regarding the funding of social work training made existing law explicit by specifying that States might make such grants to persons in educational institutions and to the institutions.

Modified:

House provision for fees for services for families and individuals with incomes between 80 and 115% of the State's median family income was retained with a provision that the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is to issue regulations relating to fees for those with incomes below this level and for welfare recipients;

Senate provision relating to social services expenditures for Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands was modified to provide that Puerto Rico may receive up to $15 million for social services (if it is available after the States have received their allotments) and Guam and the Virgin Islands may each receive up to $500,000 under the same circumstances; and Advanced the effective date from July 1, 1975, to Oct. 1, 1975, with the existing moratorium on regulations remaining in effect until that time.

Tax Credit for Low-Income Workers and Families

Rejected Senate amendment providing a tax credit for low-income workers and families.

Child Support

Senate provisions were generally accepted with the following modifications:

(a) does not require appointment of an Assistant Secretary for child support but does require the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to designate a person in charge of an organizational unit responsible for child support activities;

(b) provides that the Internal Revenue Service shall be used for collection of child support obligations only based on noncompliance with a court order and only after a one-time
