Senate Committee on Finance Questions for the Record

Drug Pricing in America: A Prescription for Change, Part II February 26, 2019

Questions for: Jennifer Taubert Executive Vice President, Worldwide Chairman, Janssen Pharmaceuticals Johnson & Johnson

Spending on Advertising/Marketing vs. Research and Development

Senator Grassley: For all witnesses:

The Department of Health and Human Services' proposed rule, "Fraud and Abuse; Removal of Safe Harbor Protection for Rebates Involving Prescription Pharmaceuticals and Creation of New Safe Harbor Protection for Certain Point-of-Sale Reductions in Price on Prescription Pharmaceuticals and Certain Pharmacy Benefit Manager Service Fees", envisions that drug manufacturers will offer upfront discounts rather than the back-end rebates that are now commonly provided. Some observers argue that a 1996 court case called into question whether manufacturers could offer upfront discounts, resulting in today's rebate-based system. I've heard differing opinions as to whether the issues related to the initial court case are still relevant. If the HHS proposed rule is finalized, can you assure the Committee that your company will offer upfront discounts? If not, why?

Please describe how you expect your company to respond to the HHS proposed rule to eliminate safe harbor protection for back-end rebates in Medicare Part D that is referenced above if it is finalized. Assuming you are confident that antitrust laws do not prevent your company from offering upfront discounts, specifically, do you envision that your company lowers the list price of a drug to the current after-rebate net price, offer discounts equal to the current rebate amount, or a combination of both?

The 1996 antitrust law case cited, in our assessment, should not limit the ability to move from rebates to other types of discounts.

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-of-sale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

To what extent are the back-end rebates your company currently offers contingent on the amount of market share realized for your drugs as a result of Part D plan formulary placement and other techniques?

Janssen does not currently offer rebates contingent on the amount of market share for our drugs as a result of Medicare Part D formulary placement. In other words, Janssen's current Medicare Part D rebate agreements do not contain any market share performance requirement.

Please provide a breakdown of percentage of sales that go to each payer (including Medicare, Medicaid, private pay, other) and a similar percentage by volume of the total number of each drug compared to total volume. Please provide this data for the most recent year available.

Potentially responsive information may not be maintained by the Company in the ordinary course of business. As such, an answer to this question is not readily available.

Do your companies hire consultants or lobbyists to promote products at state Medicaid Pharmacy & Therapeutics Committees? To whom do you disclose advocacy activities surrounding state Medicaid programs, if at all?

Janssen does not hire external lobbyists or consultants for the purpose of promoting products at state Medicaid Pharmacy & Therapeutics Committees. We have internal employees who register as lobbyists and provide information about Janssen products to state Medicaid Pharmacy & Therapeutics Committee personnel. We comply with varied state laws regarding advocacy, including disclosure requirements.

1. Please describe how the costs of patient assistance programs are accounted for within your company's financial statements. Please also describe the types of market information, such as prescribing and use patterns, that your company collects from different types of patient assistance programs and patient hub services.

Our patient assistance programs include both commercial copay support programs and charitable donations, which include both financial contributions and pharmaceutical products.

With respect to Janssen's copay card programs, the value of patient copayment support is recorded as a reduction in sales revenue. The administrative costs associated with implementing the copayment programs are captured in selling, marketing and administrative expenses on Johnson & Johnson's SEC Form 10K.

With respect to the company's charitable free product programs, Janssen donates prescription products to the Johnson & Johnson Patient Assistance Foundation, Inc. ("JJPAF"), a 501(c)(3) organization with an independent board and decision-making. Janssen also makes financial contributions to JJPAF and other independent 501(c)(3) organizations. These product and financial donations are recorded as charitable deductions.

With respect to our commercial patient assistance programs, we collect information that is needed to support administering the program, helping patients get access to the medically appropriate treatment they have selected, and identifying and addressing barriers to patient access.

2. Please provide a list of all contributions since January 1, 2014, that your company has made to any tax exempt organizations working on issues related to drugs within your product lines, including but not limited to patient groups, disease awareness groups, medical or professional societies, universities or hospitals, industry associations or leagues. For each contribution, please provide the name of the organization that received the donation, the date the donation was made, the amount of the donation, and a description of the purpose of the contribution (i.e., was the contribution for the general fund, a specific purpose to a specific program, or continuing medical education). Please also note whether the contribution was unrestricted or restricted; if it was restricted, please explain all restrictions. Finally, if your company maintains a foundation or other separate charitable arm, please provide the name of all such entities, and list all donations made from that entity or entities.

Through our Janssen charitable giving, we're proud to make a difference for patients and for the communities where we live and work. Janssen provides charitable donations through an established application review and approval process designed to ensure that the recipient of any contribution (i) is a valid 501(c)(3) charitable organization; (ii) has an established, good reputation; and (iii) is not on a federal exclusion list (if the non-profit is a provider or government contractor). In addition, the charitable contributions review process is designed to review requests for donations to make sure that they are not made for the purpose of inducing the use or recommending the use of any J&J product.

Janssen releases a contributions transparency report ("Contributions Report") that details all of the charitable donations from the company for the prior year. Please see the attached link for the most recently posted Contributions Report. https://www.janssen.com/us/transparency/educational-charitable-contribution-disclosures

With respect to the Contributions Report, please note:

• In keeping with our donor agreements and applicable regulatory guidance, financial donations made to independent charitable foundations that assist patients who are underinsured and in need of financial assistance with treatment-related expenses are disclosed in aggregate on the Janssen Contributions Report.

- Charitable contributions made by recently acquired company Actelion are not included in our Report. In future years, these donations will be included in the Contributions Report.
- Donations in the amount of $270,000 have been made annually to support the mission of PhRMA Foundation. These donations were made on April 29, 2014; January 21, 2015; December 21, 2015; September 11, 2017; June 1, 2018; and January 15, 2019.

Contribution Reports for years 2014 through 2017 are attached.

Most donation requests seek support for a specific program or initiative. If approved, the use of the contributed funds will be restricted to the purpose set forth in the application request. The Contribution Report details this purpose in the project title section.

In addition, the company's standard donation agreement used for most contributions stipulates that funds should not be used to (i) educate, train or support meals, salary, travel, consulting fees or any other reimbursement to U.S.-licensed physicians; or (ii) fund services for which the organization receives government reimbursement under a fee-for-service model.

Janssen makes financial contributions and prescription product donations to the Johnson & Johnson Patient Assistance Foundation, Inc. ("JJPAF"), a 501(c)(3) organization with an independent board and decision-making. The JJPAF provides free products directly to patients who meet certain income requirements and who do not have insurance coverage. In limited circumstances, JJPAF may work with other non-profit entities to distribute products to patients in need. JJPAF does not advise Janssen of the specific recipients of its donations.

In 2018, Janssen donated approximately $1 billion in free product and financial support to the JJPAF, enabling it to provide medicines at no cost to approximately 76,000 patients.

The Johnson & Johnson Foundation ("JJF") is a private non-profit 501(c)(3) organization, founded in 1953. Solely funded by the Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies, the Foundation is responsible for managing the Corporation's Global Community Impact ("GCI") programs and activities across the globe. Donations made by this foundation are available publicly through the IRS Form 990 it submits each year.

Pay for delay agreements cost consumers and taxpayers billions in higher drug costs every year. The FTC has gone after drug companies that enter into these settlements where the brand pays the generic company to keep its lower cost alternative off the market. I'm the lead republican sponsor of S. 64, the "Preserve Access to Affordable Generics and Biosimilars Act," which would help put an end to these deals.

- Do you agree that these pay-off agreements keep drug costs high for patients because they delay competition?
- Has your company ever entered into these kinds of settlements with a generic company?
- Do you support the pay for delay bill?

J&J has not entered into patent settlement agreements that require payment of money to a generic manufacturer. Since J&J has not entered into agreements of this type, we do not have direct experience with their competitive impacts. The current legal framework—FTC oversight and judicial review on a case-by-case basis—is intended to identify any patent settlement that is anti-competitive. It is important to note that not all settlement agreements would result in a delay in competition; for example, some agreements of this type might facilitate generic entry prior to patent expiry.

Although we believe that the current legal framework is sufficient to ensure that patent settlements are not anti-competitive, we would not oppose "pay-for-delay" legislation, provided that such legislation clearly, and in a manner consistent with current case law, defines the specific features of settlement agreements within its scope, does not hinder the ability of parties to utilize settlement agreements to efficiently settle patent disputes, and allows for an assessment of the competitive impacts of individual settlement agreements on a case-by-case basis.

Rebate Traps/Walls

I'm increasingly concerned about the effect of so-called "rebate traps" or "rebate walls" on patients' access to quality, lower cost medicine. I understand there is ongoing litigation challenging these practices as anti-competitive.

1. Does your company engage in the bundling of rebates over multiple products? If so, why? And what benefit does the consumer gain from that?

Like other companies with broad portfolios of medicines that are highly valued by payers, healthcare providers, and patients, Janssen offers incremental value when customers make a broader range of our medicines available to patients. Similar programs are common in the pharmaceutical and other industries. These programs provide an incentive for the customer to utilize our products and can lower costs. Those savings may be passed through to patients.

2. Does your company view these practices as anticompetitive or harmful to patients' access to quality, lower cost medicine?

Janssen's contract offerings encourage price competition among drug manufacturers and ultimately enhance patients' access to quality medicines at lower prices.

3. If a policy were adopted to eliminate rebates, or to require that rebate savings be passed on to the consumer, would that in and of itself solve the issue of rebate "traps" and "walls"? And would consumers benefit from such a policy?

We support reforms to the rebate system that restructure incentives to ensure patients benefit from a competitive marketplace and see lower out-of-pocket costs.

It is important to note that in today's healthcare marketplace, payers use their ability to influence utilization to extract rebates, thereby enhancing competition and lowering overall system costs. Unfortunately, these savings are not usually shared with patients.

Similarly, if rebates are eliminated, we anticipate that payers will use their ability to influence utilization to extract discounts and fees from manufacturers.

Drug Pricing

- a) When setting the list price of a drug, does your company consider regulatory costs or compliance? If so, how specifically do those factors affect the list price of a drug? Please provide at least one specific example, if applicable, from your current product portfolio.
- b) When setting the list price of a drug, does your company consider the risk of liability or litigation? If so, how specifically do those factors affect the list price of a drug? Please provide at least one specific example, if applicable, from your current product portfolio.

At Janssen, we take a responsible approach to pricing that recognizes our dual responsibility to patients today and patients tomorrow. Patients today need access to our medicines. Patients tomorrow count on us to deliver cures and treatments for the most challenging, intractable diseases. When we set an initial list price for our medicines, we balance:

- Value to patients, the healthcare system, and society.
 - We consider how the medicine will improve patient health. We also assess the medicine's potential to reduce other costs—surgeries, hospital stays, or long-term care, for example—and the improvement the medicine represents over the existing standard of care.
- The importance of maintaining affordable access to medicines for people who need them.
 - We work with insurers, pharmacy benefits managers, governments, hospitals, physicians, and other providers of care so that patients who are prescribed our medicines can get access to them.
- The importance of preserving our ability to develop future groundbreaking cures and treatments.
 - We have an obligation to ensure that the sale of our medicines provides us with the resources to invest in R&D to address serious, unmet medical needs.

In addition, the sale of our medicines must enable us to cover the costs of compliance with all laws and regulations.

Regarding the requests for specific examples from our current product portfolio, the information requested is confidential and competitively sensitive. As such, potentially responsive information is not available for public disclosure.

Senator Roberts:

1. What role do you see Value Based Arrangements (VBAs) playing in the effort to reduce prescription drug costs? What potential do these arrangements have to find the "sweet spot" between controlling costs to patients and encouraging innovation of new drugs?

We believe a value-based healthcare system has tremendous potential to improve patient health, increase access to care, and curb the growth in healthcare spending. Our current healthcare system rewards the quantity or volume of care delivered, regardless of the results of that care. Consequently, sometimes money is spent on treatments, diagnostic procedures, and interventions that provide limited value or may not even be needed, driving up healthcare costs without actually improving patient health.

Shifting to a value-based system requires innovation in the way contracts between payers and manufacturers are structured. By creating common incentives to deliver value for patients, value-based agreements, including innovative approaches to contracting models, can provide better outcomes at lower costs. We have established several innovative, value-based contracts and continue to explore new opportunities. For example, we have contracts tied to measurable medical outcomes and contracts tied to offsets of other expenditures.

Fundamentally we believe a value-based health system will drive down the amount of waste in our current healthcare system, so the money spent actually makes a measurable difference in individual health and the health of our society overall. Efforts to achieve a more valuebased system have encouraged all stakeholders to more clearly define and measure the value of healthcare services offered, including medicines. In a healthcare system that rewards value over volume, we believe incentives will be greater to bring to market new drugs that can reduce the need for other costly healthcare intervention and ultimately produce better health outcomes and lower cost.

2. How can VBAs help lower what patients pay out-of-pocket?

Innovative contracting models can align the incentives of all stakeholders, including pharmaceutical companies, healthcare providers, and payers, to achieve better outcomes for patients at a lower overall cost of care to the healthcare system, including federal programs. In most cases, because the pharmaceutical company agrees to share some of the risk around the economics of the arrangement for a particular medicine, the health plan or PBM will provide better access to that medicine, which may entail placing the medicine on a lower formulary tier. Lower formulary tier placement results in lower out-of-pocket costs for patients. We know that rising patient copayments are a barrier to adherence and therefore to optimal outcomes. We believe that keeping out-of-pocket costs reasonable for patients is an important element of getting to better outcomes, and innovative contracts can support this goal.

According to an analysis by PhRMA and Avalere Health, commercially insured patients in health plans with outcome-based contracts for diabetes, high cholesterol and HIV medicines between 2015 and 2017 had copays that were, on average, 28 percent lower for those medicines compared to patients in other plans.

3. Can Congress do more to allow for and encourage the use of VBAs?

We are enthusiastic about the potential for expanding the use of innovative value-based agreements. Nevertheless, a number of technological and policy barriers can make these agreements challenging to implement. To address technological barriers, we advocate for modernizing our healthcare data system to make it easier to track patient outcomes. To address policy barriers, we support the following approaches: establishing safe harbors to better enable manufacturers to partner with payers and share risk; clarifying the treatment of value-based contracts in government price calculations, including in the complex Medicaid Best Price determination; and making comparative formulary and cost-sharing information readily available so patients have the information they need to make better decisions.

Senator Cornyn:

For all witnesses:

We continue to hear that rebates negotiated off of the list price of a drug are both good and bad.

Pharmacy benefit managers and plans have argued that rebates are used to lower premiums across the board and that it is the best way to seek a price concession on otherwise expensive drugs.

Your industry argues that these payers are insisting on higher rebates that can only be achieved by raising list prices.

But patients often lose under this system, with out of pocket costs being tied to list price. Insulin patients appear to be routinely impacted by this perversity in the system.

- Please explain to the committee how your company would reduce list prices if rebates were no longer a part of the equation?
- What assurance can you provide that you would in fact lower your prices?
- What actions should be taken to ensure that patients are actually seeing the benefits of lower out of pocket costs?

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-ofsale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

We support reforms to the rebate system that restructure incentives to ensure patients benefit from rebates and discounts that are provided.

If rebates are driving high list prices for drugs as drug manufacturers' claim, why do you think that Part B drugs, which have no PBM rebates, are also seeing significant price increases? Whose fault is that?

Part B benefits from competitive commercial rebates and discounts, while maintaining access to medicines for our nation's seniors, through the Average Selling Price ("ASP"). ASP, which is the basis for Part B drug reimbursement, reflects all commercial discounts and rebates. Since both provider reimbursement and patient out-of-pocket costs for Part B drugs are based on ASP, changes in a product's ASP is a more relevant indicator of true cost to the Medicare system and beneficiaries.

Senator Enzi:

Ms. Taubert, Mr. Gonalez

 The Food and Drug Administration's drug review process is known to many as the "gold standard" for evaluating medical products. I've long thought that it is critical that we maintain public confidence in their ability to ensure that drugs are safe and effective. There is a perception among some, however, that biosimilars might not be as safe as their reference products. That perception can undermine patient and provider confidence. Do you believe that when FDA approves a biosimilar, providers can be confident that it is safe and effective?

Biosimilars granted licensure by the FDA are by definition safe and effective and are highly similar to the reference biologic. We support the FDA's application of rigorous scientific standards and appropriate data requirements for the licensure of both biosimilars and interchangeable biosimilars, and we believe evidence and experience will drive patient and provider confidence in these products.

Senator Young:

For all witnesses:

1. Re-evaluating Business Strategies in Foreign Countries

Since taking office, President Trump has made reducing drug prices one of his highest priorities – and has repeatedly spoken about his frustration with the U.S. subsidizing the costs of pharmaceuticals for the rest of the world. He has gone so far as to issue proposals, like the International Pricing Index (IPI) Model, in an attempt to bring down prescription drug prices.

Questions for All Companies:

With the increased scrutiny of the industry and of the drug supply chain as a whole in the United States

- Have any of your companies re-evaluated your business strategy in foreign countries?
- If not, then why?

- If a proposal, like IPI, were implemented, would it force your companies to potentially "walk away from the negotiating table when other countries demand low prices subsidized by America's seniors," as HHS Senior Advisor for Drug Pricing Reform John O'Brien has said?
- What are some of your ideas on how we can ensure Americans aren't shouldering the full cost of pharmaceuticals?

We continuously evaluate our global business strategy and country-specific market access approaches in light of current conditions, including changing policies and circumstances.

We support the use of trade tools to improve the policy environment for U.S. companies operating overseas and to enhance incentives for innovation. The U.S. government has already taken steps to advance this goal with some of our key trading partners. The U.S. Mexico Canada Agreement ("USMCA") includes important provisions committing Canada and Mexico to recognize the value of pharmaceuticals either through the operation of competitive markets or through procedures that appropriately value pharmaceuticals. The agreement also contains procedural safeguards for U.S. companies. These include a requirement that Canada and Mexico provide opportunities for stakeholder comment on measures before they are finalized and also offer U.S. companies an opportunity to appeal administrative actions. These are critical tools that will help American companies obtain fair value for innovation outside the U.S.

The U.S. government has announced its intention to negotiate trade agreements with Japan, the European Union, and the United Kingdom. These negotiations could address inadequacies in the systems of some our largest trading partners.

The U.S. government can also effectively leverage existing trade agreements and tools like Organisation for Economic Cooperation accession negotiations to induce foreign governments to provide appropriate value for innovation and offer greater incentives for new treatments and cures.

2. Foreign Countries' Pricing and Reimbursement

President Trump and Secretary Azar have both repeatedly described their frustrations with "foreign freeloading" of U.S. drugs in the last year.

"When foreign governments extort unreasonably low prices from U.S. drug makers, Americans have to pay more to subsidize the enormous cost of research and development. . . . It's unfair and it's ridiculous, and it's not going to happen any longer."

Questions for All Companies:

• Do you agree that because of foreign countries' pricing and reimbursement systems, U.S. patients and innovators are shouldering the burden for financing medical advances?

According to a report by the U.S. Department of Commerce, international reference pricing and controls suppress worldwide private research and development by up to 16 percent annually, leading to fewer new medicines launched each year. Conversely, recent estimates demonstrate that removing price controls in other wealthy countries would increase the number of available new treatments by nine percent by 2030, equivalent to a range of 8 to 13 new therapeutics that year.

• How do foreign countries' pricing and reimbursement systems affect our prescription drug costs?

While there is no direct relationship between U.S. drug prices and foreign prices, according to a report by the U.S. Department of Commerce, existing foreign price controls suppress worldwide private research and development and decrease the number of new treatments and cures, to the detriment of U.S. patients.

It is important to note that most cross-country pricing comparisons focus solely on the list prices of medicines and do not account for the significant discounts required for participation in U.S. public programs, such as Medicaid, the 340B Drug Discount Program, and the Federal Supply Schedule (for U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Defense), as well as the discounts and rebates negotiated by private payers. For this reason, most international comparisons are not "apples to apples." In addition, in other countries, medicine prices are achieved through national regulation, which often restricts or delays access to innovative medicines and limits patient and physician choice.

• Are foreign governments taking note of the concerns being raised by the Trump Administration and have they responded in any way?

We understand that some foreign government officials have noted the concerns raised by the Trump Administration and appear to be seeking a better understanding of the proposed policy changes in the United States and the potential future impacts on their countries.

• Has there been any noticeable change in any of our trade agreements since these concerns have been raised by the Trump Administration?

The U.S. Mexico Canada Agreement ("USMCA") contains important provisions on intellectual property that establish a higher global IP standard than in previous agreements, particularly with respect to data protection for biologics. The agreement also contains important provisions committing Canada and Mexico to recognize the value of pharmaceuticals either through the operation of competitive markets or through procedures that appropriately value pharmaceuticals. The agreement includes procedural safeguards for U.S. companies. These include a requirement that Canada and Mexico provide opportunities for stakeholder comment on measures before they are finalized and also offer U.S. companies an opportunity to appeal administrative actions. These are critical tools that will help American companies obtain fair value for innovation. The U.S. government has announced its intention to negotiate trade agreements with Japan, the European Union, and the United Kingdom. These negotiations could address inadequacies in the systems of some our largest trading partners. The U.S. government can also effectively leverage existing trade agreements and tools like Organisation for Economic Cooperation accession negotiations to induce foreign governments to provide appropriate value for innovation and offer greater incentives for new treatments and cures.

3. Medicaid Closed Formulary Proposals

In an attempt to bring down drug costs, various states have been exploring whether to exclude certain drugs from its Medicaid program. For example, the state of Massachusetts' recently asked CMS for permission to create a closed formulary where the state Medicaid program would pick at least one drug per therapeutic class. CMS denied their waiver request citing violation of federal law, but this proposal does bring up important questions on how to contain drug prices in state Medicaid programs.

Questions for All Companies:

• If the principles of the Medicare Part D program – including the necessary patient protections – were applied to state Medicaid programs, do you think it lower drugs costs while ensuring access to patients?

By legislative design, the Medicaid Program already receives the "best" price, in addition to substantial rebates associated with an inflation penalty and negotiated supplemental rebates. The rebate is never less than 23.1%, the required statutory minimum, and often requires manufacturers to sell their products (both older and newer) for as low as 1 cent per pill or unit.

The Medicaid drug rebate statute represents a carefully crafted legislative approach developed by Congress and designed as a package to offer Medicaid beneficiaries comprehensive coverage and access to outpatient drugs at the lowest cost in the marketplace. We support the significant access protections required under the current Medicaid Drug Rebate Program that serve a uniquely vulnerable population. We also question whether reducing access to medically necessary medication for vulnerable Medicaid beneficiaries will yield true program savings. Any further restrictions in medication access is likely to increase the risk of higher costs elsewhere in the healthcare continuum. Moreover, vulnerable Medicaid beneficiaries may be particularly challenged to navigate the administrative, technical, logistical and other challenges that inevitably arise when additional restrictions are placed on their access to care.

4. Medicaid "Best Price"

In the Trump Administration's Blueprint, they suggested that because drug manufactures have to give Medicaid the "best price" on drugs, there is no incentive to offer deeper discounts to other payers - both government and commercial - than what is already offered under the Medicaid Drug Rebate Program.

Questions for All Companies:

• Does the Medicaid "best price" requirement encourage manufacturers to increase initial prices?

We take into account the Medicaid "best price" requirement at all stages of the drug lifecycle, including launch. We consider best price when offering large discounts to commercial customers after a drug is launched and when designing value-based agreements.

• What, if any, changes would you suggest we make to the program?

We are supportive of ongoing efforts to promote a value-driven healthcare system, including in Medicaid, and applaud recent efforts by both the Administration and Congress that seek to address regulatory and legal uncertainty around value-based payment arrangements. We also support CMS' recent approvals of state proposals to advance specific Medicaid value-based arrangements with drug makers.

5. Outcomes-Based Contracts

In almost all of your testimonies, you highlight your support of outcomes-based contracts and how we need to be shifting our system toward that approach.

Questions for All Companies:

- How will these contracts lower drug costs for patients in both the near-term and long-term?
- How will they lower overall healthcare costs for our federal programs?
- What have the preliminary results looked like so far?

Innovative contracting models can align the incentives of all stakeholders, including pharmaceutical companies, healthcare providers, and payers, to achieve better outcomes for patients at a lower overall cost of care to the healthcare system, including federal programs.

In most cases, because the pharmaceutical company agrees to share some of the risk around the economics of the arrangement for a particular medicine, the health plan or PBM will provide better access to that medicine, which often entails placing the medicine on a more preferable formulary tier. More preferable formulary tier placement results in lower out-of-pocket costs for patients. We know that rising patient copayments are a barrier to adherence and therefore to optimal outcomes. We believe that keeping out-of-pocket costs reasonable for patients is an important element of getting to better outcomes, and innovative contracts can support this goal.

According to an analysis by PhRMA and Avalere Health, commercially insured patients in health plans with outcome-based contracts for diabetes, high cholesterol and HIV medicines between 2015 and 2017 had copays that were, on average, 28 percent lower for those medicines compared to patients in other plans.

Innovative contracting models are still relatively new, and we look forward to the point at which we will have the long-term data necessary to evaluate the success of these programs with respect to healthcare cost reduction. We are enthusiastic about the potential of innovative value-based contracting models to enable us to take full advantage of medicines' benefits, including their potential to reduce other healthcare costs.

6. Transparency/Point of Sale

In almost all of your testimonies, you express your support for the Trump Administration's proposal to allow manufacturers to provide PBMs up-front discounts that are passed onto patients at the point-of-sale.

Questions for All Companies:

- Do you feel like this proposal will make the transactions within the drug supply chain more transparent?
- If so, would this transparency bring down drug costs –overall and for specialty drugs?

We do believe that a point-of-sale discount model, wherein manufacturer discounts could be passed through to a patient at the point-of-sale, will make price reductions offered by the manufacturer more transparent because these discounts would be more directly reflected in patient out-of-pocket cost at the pharmacy. However, we do not believe that the proposal will improve transparency with respect to fees or mark-ups to the price of drugs added elsewhere in the supply chain.

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only with respect to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale.

7. The Relationship between Wholesalers and Manufacturers

When talking about the pharmaceutical supply chain, a lot of focus has been placed on the Pharmacy Benefit Manager. But there's another side of the equation that I'd like to ask about -

Questions for All Companies:

• How do wholesalers negotiate pricing with manufacturers?

Janssen sells to wholesalers and specialty distributors at list price, with discounts customarily offered for prompt payment. Janssen occasionally offers discounts to wholesalers for discrete periods of time on certain products. These are generally offered to contracted, authorized wholesalers market-wide. In addition, Janssen negotiates service agreements with wholesalers and specialty distributors for bona fide services relating to distribution of Janssen products.

• What impact does this have on drug costs?

We do not know the details of the wholesalers' arrangements with downstream stakeholders such as pharmacies, hospitals, providers, and other sites of care.

• What incentives or disincentives do they have to contain price increases?

We are not in a position to comment on wholesaler incentives or disincentives to contain price increases.

Senator Wyden: For All Witnesses:

Proposed Rebate Rule

As has been done in many other settings, drug manufacturers said during the hearing that one reason list prices for drugs are high is that pharmaceutical benefit managers (PBMs) demand larger and larger rebates in order for the drug to receive favorable placement on a formulary. You and your colleagues who testified during the hearing stated if the Administration's proposal on changes to the anti-kickback safe harbor for pharmaceutical rebates took effect, your company would likely lower list price.

Like many Oregonians, I am skeptical drug manufacturers would voluntarily lower their prices. Therefore, would you support legislation that would 1) make similar changes the Administration has put forward related to Part D and Medicaid managed care, 2) change the rebate system in a similar way to the proposal for the commercial market, and 3) require drug makers to lower the list price of their drugs equal to the amount of rebates provided today?

We support reforms to the rebate system that restructure incentives to ensure patients benefit from a competitive marketplace and see lower out-of-pocket costs.

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-of-sale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

Medicaid Drug Rebate Program

The Medicaid Drug Rebate Program (MDRP) requires manufacturers to provide a basic rebate and an additional inflationary rebate for both brand and generic drugs. The inflationary rebate is an increasingly substantial part of total rebates due in large part to large increases in drug prices that exceed inflation. Under current law, this inflationary rebate is capped at 100 percent of Average Manufacturer Price (AMP). This is the case even when manufacturers continue to raise their prices well above inflation.

- 1. Please provide a list of all of your pharmaceutical products that have reached the Medicaid AMP rebate cap in any of the 20 quarters from January 1, 2014 through December 31, 2018.
- 2. For each drug listed in response to question 1, please also provide a list of which quarters and years each drug hit the cap.

Janssen has numerous current products, and products that have since been sold to third parties, that have reached the Medicaid AMP rebate cap in at least one of the 20 quarters from 1Q 2014 through 4Q 2018. The fact that these products reaching the 100% AMP cap is based on confidential metrics reported under the Medicaid Drug Rebate Program. The Medicaid AMP rebate cap is reached when AMP is less than or equal to the Unit Rebate Amount (URA). URA is calculated based on AMP and Best Price–which are confidential under the Medicaid Drug Rebate statute at 42 U.S.C. § 1396r-8(b)(3)(D). There are exceptions in the statute that permit the Secretary and State Medicaid agencies to disclose the information only in certain situations, including disclosure to CBO. Thus, if there was legislation proposing to amend the 100% AMP cap, CBO would be able to access the drugs and underlying data to estimate the cost/savings to the government of such a legislative change.

Medicaid Drug Rebate Program Compliance

I am concerned about recent reports and legal settlements surrounding drug manufacturers' failure to comply fully with the requirements of the MDRP. For example, an analysis by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Office of Inspector General found that between 2012 and 2016 taxpayers may have overpaid by as much as $1.3 billion for 10 potentially misclassified drugs. That is why I introduced the Right Rebate Act with Chairman Grassley to prevent drug manufacturers from manipulating Medicaid to increase their profits. However, I continued to be concerned about oversight and manufacturer compliance with the requirements of the Medicaid Drug Rebate Program. Accordingly, please describe the following:

1. Your company's current compliance plan and procedures used to ensure compliance with the requirements of the Medicaid Drug Rebate Program including internal audits or other checks you use to identify compliance vulnerabilities.

- 2. Any past or ongoing issues of non-compliance.
- 3. Any corrective actions taken to address identified problems or issues of non-compliance with the MDRP and how such steps were communicated to the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services.
- 4. Any steps taken to improve compliance and ensure that all Medicaid drug rebates owed to the federal government and the states are paid in full.

We comply with the obligations we undertake when participating in U.S. federal, state or local government contracts and government pricing programs such as the Medicaid Drug Rebate Program. We have an established compliance framework along with organizational structure and accountabilities designed to assure compliance. Our framework includes testing and monitoring and an obligation to correct any identified discrepancies. As such, any discrepancies have been timely addressed and corrected.

The other information requested is confidential. As such, potentially responsive information is not available for public disclosure.

Bonus Payments Tied to Specific Drugs

I am concerned by the potential for employee financial incentives to encourage high launch prices and price increases for prescription drugs.

1. Is your salary, bonus or other compensation tied to sales or revenue targets of a single product your company sells? Has it ever been? If yes, please state the product or products to which your salary, bonus or other compensation was tied.

At no time during her employment with the Johnson & Johnson Family of Companies has Ms. Taubert's salary, bonus or other compensation been tied to sales or revenue targets of a single product.

2. Is your salary, bonus or other compensation tied to either revenue or net income of the company as a whole? Has it ever been? If yes, please explain what assumptions about price increases are used when the compensation committee sets revenue or net income goals. Does the compensation committee provide any guidance to executives in regards to the amount of revenue that the company will generate from price increases versus volume growth?

We structure performance-based compensation to reward an appropriate balance of shortterm and long-term financial and strategic business results, with an emphasis on managing the business for long-term results. Our compensation program's emphasis on long-term value reduces the possibility that our executives make excessively risky business decisions that could maximize short-term results at the expense of long-term value.

Ms. Taubert's base salary is tied to performance, market data, responsibilities, time in position, internal equity, and experience. Ms. Taubert's bonus and long-term incentive compensation has been and is awarded based on her individual performance and the company's performance.

The compensation committee does not provide guidance to executives regarding the amount of revenue that the company will generate from price increases versus volume growth.

Provision of Rebates in Exchange for Formulary Placement

In today's system, drug makers receive a limited time window to sell their drug without competition. After that period has expired, low-cost generics should become available. However, drug makers often prevent access to these cheaper generic drugs in Medicare. Researchers have found that 72 percent of Medicare Part D plans charged lower cost-sharing for a brand name drug compared to its generic equivalent. This means seniors were charged less out of pocket for brand name drugs compared to generics that are on average four times cheaper than the brand-named drug. This happens because drug makers pay a rebate to the Part D plans in order to give the more expensive drug better treatment than a generic. As a result, Medicare spending increases due to the current structure of the Part D benefit.

- 1. Has your company ever paid a rebate to a Part D plan so that a brand name drug would get preferential treatment (i.e. lower cost-sharing or less utilization management) compared to a cheaper generic?
- 2. If so, please provide:
 - a. A list of the drugs for which your company has done this since January 1, 2014.
 - b. The number of Part D plans in which this type of rebate was given for each drug in each year.

In negotiations with PBMs and payers, Janssen may offer multiple different rebate options. The PBM or payer has sole discretion over how formularies are structured. In some cases, a PBM or payer may establish a formulary that puts a branded drug in a preferential position.

Net Prices

Your testimony stated that "while our 2018 aggregate list price increase was 6.3 percent, for the second year in a row discounts and rebates outweighed that increase, and aggregate net price – in other words, the real price – decreased by 6.8 percent." According to your testimony, the net price "represents the year-over-year change in the average net price, which is WAC less rebates, discounts, and returns." Please describe how the company's year-over-year aggregate net price is calculated. Please also specifically address the following questions:

Average net price change represents the year-over-year change in the average net price, which is Wholesale Acquisition Cost less rebates, discounts, and returns.

1. How many products are included in the calculation of the average net price change? What was the median net price change?

We believe weighted average net price change is the appropriate metric for evaluating list price changes across the portfolio. There are 99 products (brands) included in the average net price change calculation. The 2017–2018 weighted average net price change is -6.8%. The non-weighted average 2017–2018 net price change is -3.7%. The 2017–2018 median net price change is -1.9%. It is important to note that non-weighted average or median net price change treats all medicines—whether used by many patients or by very few—equally, so those figures are not useful or valuable in understanding the actual change experienced.

2. Is net price weighted? If so, how? For example, in determining the aggregate net price does the company assign different weights to different products based on volume or other factors? Are "on patent" and "off patent" drugs weighted identically? Are other statistical weights used or are all products treated equally?

Annual net price change vs. prior year is calculated at the product level and weighted across the company's U.S. product portfolio using net trade sales. All products, both "on patent" and "off patent," are included.

3. Does the figure that you provided during your testimony account for U.S. prices, international prices, or both? Generally speaking, when your company reports net price changes, does it differentiate between U.S. and international prices?

The figure provided, -6.8%, accounts for 2018 net price change for our U.S. pharmaceutical business only. We disclose this figure in our annual Janssen U.S. Transparency Report.

4. Please list the five drugs your company sold in the U.S. that had the greatest year-overyear net price increase in 2018, noting the increase for each drug by dollar figure and percentage. Please list the five drugs your company sold in the U.S. that had the lowest year-over-year net price increase (and/or the greatest decrease) in 2018, noting the increase (or decrease) for each drug by dollar figure and percentage.

The information requested is confidential and competitively sensitive. As such, potentially responsive information is not available for public disclosure.

5. For 2018, what was the average net price change in the U.S. market for (1) drugs with no competition, (2) drugs with only branded competition, and (3) drugs with generic competition?

The information requested is confidential and competitively sensitive. As such, potentially responsive information is not available for public disclosure.

6. Your company noted in its annual financial filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission that "Immunology was negatively impacted by lower sales of REMICADE[®] (infliximab) due to increased discounts/rebates and biosimilar competition," and "Strong sales of long-acting injectables INVEGA TRINZA[®]/TREVICTA[®] (paliperidone palmitate) and INVEGA SUSTENNA[®]/XEPLION[®] were partially offset by cannibalization of RISPERDAL CONSTA[®] (risperidone) and generic competition for CONCERTA[®]/methylphenidate," and "Lower sales of INVOKANA[®]/INVOKAMET[®] (canagliflozin) in the U.S. was primarily due to an increase in price discounts, higher rebates and market share decline driven by competitive pressure. Lower sales of XARELTO[®] (rivaroxaban) were driven by an increase in discounts and rebates, partially offset by an increase in market share." What were the year-over-year net price changes for each of these drugs?

The information requested is confidential and competitively sensitive. As such, potentially responsive information is not available for public disclosure.

7. Please define the following terms that were used on page 20 of your company's annual report for the year ending December 31, 2018 regarding sales of various pharmaceutical products: strong uptake, market growth, and share gain. Please also define "reduction in sales," as used in the sentence "Biosimilar versions of REMICADE[®] have been introduced in certain markets outside the U.S., resulting in a reduction in sales of REMICADE[®] in those markets."

"Strong uptake" means that we are seeing significant utilization of a medicine that was recently introduced into the market or approved for a new indication.

"Market growth" refers to increase in utilization of medicines overall for a particular disease state or in a particular class of medicines.

"Share gain" means that within a class of medicines or therapeutic area, a particular medicine is being selected and utilized more than it had been previously and now represents a greater percentage of utilization within that class relative to competitor medicines.

"Reduction in sales" in the sentence you reference means that revenues for REMICADE[®] are lower than they have been in previous years. Please note that our 2018 Annual Report goes on to state, "In the U.S., a biosimilar version of REMICADE[®] was introduced in 2016, and additional competitors continue to enter the market. Continued infliximab biosimilar competition in the U.S. market will result in a further reduction in U.S. sales of REMICADE[®]."

Senator Menendez:

Johnson & Johnson EVP, Jennifer Taubert

 During the hearing, when I asked whether your company engaged in tactics to delay generic production of your products, you answered "no". However, your Johnson & Johnson's Actelion appears on the FDA's list of companies who have access complaints against them. Can you explain the discrepancy between your answer and the FDA list? The FDA list can be found here:

https://www.fda.gov/Drugs/DevelopmentApprovalProcess/HowDrugsareDevelopedandApproved/ApprovalApplications/AbbreviatedNewDrugApplicationANDAGenerics/ucm607738.htm

Johnson & Johnson acquired Actelion in June 2017. We share FDA's commitment to policies that promote access to generics when balanced with the protection of innovation and the safeguarding of patient safety. It is important to note that the FDA's website on Reference Listed Drug ("RLD") Access Inquiries does not differentiate between inquiries and complaints, and does not clarify whether the RLD Sponsor made samples available after the FDA issued a Safety Determination Letter. Following the receipt of a Safety Determination Letter from the FDA, Actelion has actively entered into a supply agreement with every generic manufacturer who has requested testing samples of our products. This is true for each instance cited in the FDA's RLD Access Inquiry list. Actelion is also actively engaging with generic manufacturers to develop shared REMS programs that protect patient safety while enabling patient access to our medicines.

For all witnesses:

Part 1: When new products enter the market, do drug companies set high initial rebates and then provide deep rebates in order to gain access to insurance plan's formularies?

At Janssen, we take a responsible approach to pricing that recognizes our dual responsibility to patients today and patients tomorrow. Patients today need access to our medicines. Patients tomorrow count on us to deliver cures and treatments for the most challenging, intractable diseases. When we set an initial list price for our medicines, we balance:

- Value to patients, the healthcare system, and society.
 - We consider how the medicine will improve patient health. We also assess the medicine's potential to reduce other costs—surgeries, hospital stays, or long-term care, for example—and the improvement the medicine represents over the existing standard of care.
- The importance of maintaining affordable access to medicines for people who need them.
 - We work with insurers, pharmacy benefits managers, governments, hospitals, physicians, and other providers of care so that patients who are prescribed our medicines can get access to them.
- The importance of preserving our ability to develop future groundbreaking cures and treatments.
 - We have an obligation to ensure that the sale of our medicines provides us with the resources to invest in R&D to address serious, unmet medical needs.

We go through a lengthy process to gather the information necessary to assess the medicine according to these factors. We use this information to determine the value of our medicine compared to what is, or will be, available to treat the same condition—be it other medicines, surgery, or other forms of healthcare.

Part 2: If CMS finalizes the rebate rule, do you anticipate future products entering the market with significantly lower initial list prices?

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-of-sale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

Senator Carper:

For all witnesses:

a. What are your recommendations for lowering prices for the 40 percent of drugs that do not offer rebates in Medicare Part D? In the health insurance plans that you offer your employees, do you ask your insurers to pass through the full manufacturer rebates to the beneficiaries?

Drugs that offer lower rebates tend to be drugs that face less competition in the marketplace. Increased competition can lead to lower prices of branded and generic drugs. FDA Commissioner Scott Gottlieb prioritized faster approval of generic drugs. In 2018, FDA set a record by approving an estimated 971 generic drugs.

Within today's healthcare system, we do recover manufacturer rebates from our PBM. Any savings we receive are used to offset out-of-pocket costs for employees and total plan costs. In order to help ensure affordability for our employees, we limit out-of-pocket pharmacy costs through a monthly per prescription cap.

b. The systems for pricing and distributing drugs are opaque and difficult to understand. What are your recommendations for increasing transparency in how your companies set the list prices for drugs, and for improving transparency in the supply chain for prescription drugs? Would you support federal standards for transparency in setting the list prices for drugs? At Janssen, we issue an annual U.S. Transparency Report that explains what we take into account in setting list prices for our medicines. When we set an initial list price for our medicines, we balance:

- Value to patients, the healthcare system, and society.
 - We consider how the medicine will improve patient health. We also assess the medicine's potential to reduce other costs— surgeries, hospital stays, or long-term care, for example—and the improvement the medicine represents over the existing standard of care.
- The importance of maintaining affordable access to medicines for people who need them.
 - We work with insurers, pharmacy benefits managers, governments, hospitals, physicians, and other providers of care so that patients who are prescribed our medicines can get access to them.
- The importance of preserving our ability to develop future groundbreaking cures and treatments.
 - We have an obligation to ensure that the sale of our medicines provides us with the resources to invest in R&D to address serious, unmet medical needs.

The list price we set is a publicly available figure that can be—and is compared to other options available. We believe that a point-of-sale discount model will make price reductions offered by the manufacturer more transparent because these discounts will be directly reflected in patient out-ofpocket cost at the pharmacy. However, we do not believe that the proposal will improve transparency with respect to fees or mark-ups to the price of drugs added elsewhere in the supply chain.

Transparency that is meaningful and valuable to patients can help achieve what we all want: better healthcare, at more manageable cost, and, most importantly, longer, healthier lives for all.

We believe an environment that encourages medical innovation and robust competition to deliver the best health outcomes is essential to achieving these goals. Our support for legislation that establishes a federal standard for transparency in setting the list price for drugs would depend on the extent to which the proposed standards maintained such an environment.

c. In nearly every sector of the health care industry, Medicare, Medicaid, employers, and insurers are moving away from fee-for-service payments to reimbursements based on value and performance. Prescription drugs and medical devices were the glaring exceptions to this trend until recently. How many of your drugs are included in value-based contracts and how many patients are benefiting from them? How do these value-based contracts work to lower drug prices for both patients and taxpayers? We have established several innovative, value-based contracts with insurers and continue to explore new opportunities. For example, in immunology, we partnered with payers to create an agreement in which the price of a medicine for chronic immune conditions varies based on how well it works for patients. In oncology, we partnered with public and private payers on novel contracts for patients with prostate cancer and agreed in one contract to provide additional rebates to the insurer for plan members who meet eligibility criteria and whose treatment duration is shorter than a predetermined period of time. We also partnered with a leading payer on a contract under which we are paid more if data show our medicine that treats adults with type 2 diabetes contributed to lowering other identified healthcare costs, such as the use of additional medicines.

d. Last year, Senator Portman and I did an investigation on the pricing of an opioid overdose reversal drug called EVZIO, manufactured by Kaléo. Kaléo increased the price of EVZIO from $575 in 2014 to $4,100 in 2017. We found that the best price Medicare was able to get for EVZIO, about $4,000, was much higher than the price other federal programs and private insurers were able to get. It seemed that Kaléo was able to get this higher price of $4,000 from Medicare by helping doctors fill out paperwork showing that the drug was medically necessary, even though there are cheaper alternatives on the market. As a result of the investigation, Kaléo announced it will bring a generic version of the drug to market at only $168 per pack. Are any of your companies providing medical necessity paperwork to doctors in order to get your drugs covered by Medicare?

Like other pharmaceutical companies, we offer a sample letter of medical necessity that offices can complete using their own clinical judgment regarding the medical and clinical rationale for submission to the insurance company or PBM. We also research and provide payer-specific forms required to provide medical necessity information such as payer-specific prior authorization forms.

e. In 2017, the Rand Corporation estimated that biosimilar drugs, which are competitors to complex, biologic drugs, could save the United States more than $50 billion over the next decade. Some of you have also argued that increasing the use of biosimilar drugs would help lower drugs costs for consumers and taxpayers. What is delaying the uptake of biosimilar drugs in the United States? What policies do you recommend to increase the development of biosimilar drugs?

The goal of biosimilar policy should be to lower costs for the healthcare system and patients, and not simply to encourage biosimilar uptake without regard to price. The current open and competitive environment supports price competition and biosimilar uptake as appropriate. For example, the net price of infliximab products, including the innovator product REMICADE[®], is falling. Furthermore, the uptake of infliximab biosimilars in the U.S. is consistent with branded biologic launches of immunology products, including those that provide a clinical benefit over the standard of care.

Biologics are used in patients with serious, chronic conditions, many of whom have taken years to become stable on a branded product. Healthcare providers and patients may naturally be hesitant to switch medicines in these circumstances. The approval of an interchangeable biosimilar may address some of the physician and patient reservations about switching a stable patient to a non-interchangeable biosimilar.

The biosimilars pipeline is strong and a diverse group of companies traditional pharmaceutical manufacturers as well as manufacturers focused on biosimilars—is investing in the space. For example, in the immunology therapeutic area alone, at least 18 biosimilars are currently in clinical development or undergoing FDA review.

We fully support a regulatory framework for FDA review and approval of biosimilars and interchangeable biosimilars with standards and policies that are science-based and rooted in patient safety. Ultimately, the uptake of biosimilars will be reliant on competitive pricing and on patient and prescriber confidence. Provider and patient confidence can be strengthened by the application of rigorous review standards, including the robust approach to interchangeability that FDA is pursuing and appropriate standards regarding biosimilar to biosimilar switching.

Biosimilar manufacturers need access to samples of reference products to perform comparative testing required to demonstrate biosimilarity or interchangeability. We cooperate with manufacturers of generic drugs and biosimilars so they have access to samples of our medicines at reasonable, market-based prices. To facilitate access to product samples while fostering efficiencies in the delivery and oversight of healthcare, we believe that manufacturers should identify for FDA a point of contact to facilitate access to samples for each approved reference product. When a Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) is in place, the REMS should facilitate the safe use of medicine and ensure access for appropriate patients; it should not be used to hinder provision of product samples for use in developing a generic or biosimilar. We believe FDA should finalize draft guidance, issued December 2018, describing a process for FDA determination that protocols pertaining to biosimilarity and interchangeability testing contain safety protections comparable to an applicable REMS with limited distribution elements. A letter from FDA stating comparable protections exist and indicating FDA would not consider it to be a violation of the REMS to provide samples to the biosimilar manufacturer provides needed assurances for reference product manufacturers about both the safe use of our products and regulatory compliance.

The Purple Book is an essential resource for many stakeholders and should be enhanced to provide timely information to stakeholders, to clarify practices regarding substitution, and to provide information to assure the appropriate use of biosimilars and interchangeable products. In addition, the Purple Book should include detailed information about approved biosimilars and interchangeable biosimilars, including, for example, a description or listing of pivotal clinical trials considered in FDA's approval of the biosimilar.

Senator Cardin:

 The United States is one of the only countries in the world to allow prescription drug manufacturers to advertise directly to consumers through magazines, billboards, radio, and television commercials. While I will not argue that it is beneficial to educate consumers about an unfamiliar disease and encourage them to seek medical help, most commercials from all of your companies recommend asking about a specific brand name drug, not a medical condition. Furthermore, even if your advertisements follow all FDA rules and list medication side effects, they also almost always list these while a smiling, apparently healthy person is walking on a beach.

Researchers say that this type of imagery, combined with viewing hours of drug commercials each month, leads consumers to underestimate the risks associated with medications. For the past decade, studies have shown that aggressive direct-to-consumer advertising is associated with rising drug prices and an increase in inappropriate drug prescriptions.

a. Since researchers have concluded that consumers are misunderstanding the benefits and risks described in your ads, what further policies could help you and your colleagues ensure that you are educating patients in a clear manner?

At Janssen, we believe patients can get and stay healthier when they are well informed about their conditions and treatment options. We provide accurate, up-to-date educational materials in language that is clear and understandable for consumers to help patients facing diseases our medicines treat and to help patients who take our medicines understand how to use them properly. Our product-specific communications, including our DTC advertising, are designed to encourage appropriate dialogue between patients and healthcare providers about the risks and benefits of treatment.

We believe acting ethically and responsibly is not only the right thing to do but also the right way to do business. We follow all relevant laws and regulations regarding the promotion of prescription drug products and submit promotional materials to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration at the time of initial publication or dissemination.

We are always open to ways to improve our communication, including DTC, to ensure patients better understand the benefits and risks of our medicines.

Pharmaceutical Companies Continue to Raise Prices

1. As you are well aware, high prescription drug prices are the number one concern for Americans and their families. According to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, the average American spends around $1,208 annually on prescription drugs. There have been several instances where brand name or even generic drugs that have been on the market for years continue to increase in price.

One of the most well known examples is Mylan's increase of the price of EpiPen from less than $100 in 2007 to more than $600 in 2016. Another example, is the everincreasing price of insulin. Sanofi increased the price of a vial of Lantus from $88.20 in 2007 to $307.20 in 2017. And those are just a small sample of price increases.

For Mr. Gonzalez, Dr. Soriot, Dr. Caforio, Ms. Taubert, Mr. Frazier, Dr. Bourla, and Dr. Brandicourt:

a. Why don't we see price decreases for drugs that have been on the market for years without new formulations or added benefit?

In fact, net price does often decrease, sometimes quite significantly, for medicines that have been on the market for years because of competition from other, newer medicines for the same condition. Competition brings down price for payers such as PBMs and insurers, although unfortunately patients often do not benefit from the lower net price.

It is also important to note that biopharmaceutical innovation paves the way for the introduction of generic medicines, which enables medicine costs to be reduced over time. In the U.S., medicines lose patent protection, on average, about 12 years after they are introduced. When that happens, prices generally drop significantly, giving patients ongoing access to effective therapies at a lower cost.

Pay for Delay

1. Pay for delay is a tactic that more and more branded drug manufacturers have been using to stifle competition from lower-cost generic manufacturers. This allows you to sidestep competition by offering patent settlements that pay generic companies not to bring lower-cost alternatives to market.

These "pay-for-delay" patent settlements benefit both brand-name pharmaceutical companies by helping them avoid costly patent litigation and general manufacturers by rewarding them a hefty sum to delay entering the market with a cheaper drug alternative. However, these deals do not benefit consumers. According to an FTC study, these anticompetitive deals cost consumers and taxpayers $3.5 billion in higher drug costs every year.

For Mr. Gonzalez, Dr. Soriot, Dr. Caforio, Ms. Taubert, Mr. Frazier, Dr. Bourla, and Dr. Brandicourt:

a. Does your company partake in pay-for-delay settlements?

We have not entered into patent settlement agreements that require payment of money to a generic manufacturer.

b. Why would a pharmaceutical company enter into a pay-for delay agreement?

We have not entered into patent settlement agreements that require payment of money to a generic manufacturer and, therefore, we cannot speculate as to why other companies might enter into such agreements in specific cases.

c. Do you think these agreements stifle competition and prevent generic alternatives to your branded medications?

We have not entered into patent settlement agreements that require payment of money to a generic manufacturer, so we do not have direct experience with their competitive impacts. However, we believe that the competitive impact of any individual settlement agreement must be evaluated on a case-by-case basis. The current legal framework—FTC oversight and judicial review on a case-by-case basis—is intended to identify any patent settlement that is anti-competitive.

Drug Rebate Rule

1. In January, the Department of Health and Human Services' (HHS) Office of Inspector General (OIG) promulgated a new regulation to remove regulatory safe harbor protections under the Anti-Kickback Statute (AKS) for rebates on prescription drugs rebates paid by manufactures to PBMs under Medicare Part D and for Medicaid managed care organizations (MCOs). The OIG proposal attempts to ban most rebates by eliminating their regulatory protections.

The rule is predicted to increase net drug costs in its early years. The CMS actuaries estimate it would cost $196 billion over 10 years. Despite this high price tag, the beneficiary benefits are limited. The proposed rule notes that under the CMS Actuary's analysis, the majority of beneficiaries would see an increase in their total out-of-pocket payments and premium costs; reductions in total cost sharing will exceed total premium increases.

I wanted to ask a question about the Administration's rebate rule, which I understand that many of the drug manufacturers, and your main trade association, strongly support. According to an analysis of the rule by the Office of Actuaries at CMS, drug manufacturers are likely to initially retain 15 percent of the current rebates as higher net drug prices.

For Mr. Gonzalez, Dr. Soriot, Dr. Caforio, Ms. Taubert, Mr. Frazier, Dr. Bourla, and Dr. Brandicourt:

a. Given that estimate, can you provide the Committee with any assurances that prices will not increase under this proposed rule?

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-of-sale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

Senator Brown:

As I understand it, two years ago PhRMA updated its membership standards to require member companies to meet two new criteria: 1) each company must meet a three-year average global research and development to sales ratio of 10 percent or greater, and 2) each company must spend at least $200 million on R&D per year over a three-year average. As a result of these changes, several companies who continue to operate under business models that prioritize price gouging over innovation, left PhRMA.

1. Ms. Taubert: given your company's role in setting a higher standard for R&D, would you support a more even playing field by raising the minimum bar for R&D across the entire pharmaceutical sector, in particular for companies that participate in government programs such as Medicare and Medicaid?

We are proud to set a high standard for R&D investment. In 2018 Janssen invested $8.4 billion globally in research and development. This investment in R&D was 86 percent more than we spent on sales and marketing. However, we would not support a policy that requires a certain amount of R&D spending for a manufacturer's products to be covered by Medicare and Medicaid because we would not want to deny patients access to needed medication based on the investment decisions of these drug companies.

According to an article recently published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, medical marketers spend nearly $30 billion dollars in 2016, up from $17 billion in 1997. Direct-to-Consumer (DTC) advertising had the biggest percentage increase: from $2.1 billion, or 11.9% of all medical marketing, in 1997 to $9.6 billion, or 32% of total spending, in 2016.

1. All witnesses: Can each of you please provide what your ratio of spending on sales and marketing to research and development is today?

In 2018, the pharmaceutical segment of Johnson & Johnson invested 86% more in R&D globally ($8.4B) than we spent on global sales and marketing ($4.5B).

Price-Gouging

Sanofi, as I understand it, has made a pledge to the public to limit its price increases to the national health expenditures growth projection.

1. Mr. Gonzalez, Mr. Soriot, Dr. Caforio, Ms. Taubert, Mr. Frazier, Dr. Bourla: Would your company commit to a cap on annual price increases as part of your PhRMA membership criteria?

In 1993, the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association (PMA, now the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America or PhRMA) asked the Department of Justice ("DOJ") Antitrust Division to review a proposal for a PMA effort to ask member companies to commit voluntarily to limiting price increases on their entire line of prescription medicines in any calendar year to an amount not to exceed the increase in the Consumer Price Index (CPI). In its response, the DOJ Antitrust Division stated that, "[T]he Department believes that the proposed program would violate the antitrust laws... The Supreme Court has... made clear that agreements that set maximum prices are as equally illegal as agreements that set minimum prices." The DOJ noted that it "intends to bring suit to challenge the program if PMA and its members go forward with this proposal." Therefore, we are unable to commit to such a cap as part of PhRMA membership requirements due to likely enforcement action by the DOJ.

2. All witnesses: What policies would you propose to help ensure lower launch prices for new drugs?

We support rebate reforms that ensure patients benefit from negotiated rebates and discounts—$150 billion in 2017 alone—and, as a result, have patients see lower out-of-pocket costs at the pharmacy.

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-ofsale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

Transparency

In many of your testimonies, you mentioned that the current system of pharmacy benefit manager (PBM) back-end rebates do not rarely results in a scenario where the PBM passes on savings to consumers at the point of sale (POS). The Administration recently proposed a rule to eliminate the anti-kickback statute safe harbor protections for these drug rebates.

1. All witnesses: do you agree that greater transparency should be required to understand how manufacturers and PBMs are negotiating prices and rebates to ensure that savings are passed down to beneficiaries?

We believe that a point-of-sale discount model will make price reductions offered by the manufacturer more transparent because these discounts will be directly reflected in patient out-of-pocket cost at the pharmacy. However, we do not believe that the proposal will improve transparency with respect to fees or mark-ups to the price of drugs added elsewhere in the supply chain.

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale.

PBMs

An Axios article from March 7, 2019 highlights the fact that, while "pharmaceutical companies put a lot of the blame for high drug prices on pharmacy benefit managers," many large pharmaceutical companies "rely on PBMs to manage their own health care benefits."

1. All witnesses: in your role as an employer, does your company contract with a pharmaceutical benefit manager (PBM) to administer the prescription drug benefits for your employees and negotiate lower drug costs on your behalf?

As an employer, we design our own pharmacy benefit program and contract with a PBM for administration and to negotiate on our behalf.

2. All witnesses: for those of you who do use a PBM to help manage the prescription drug benefit for your employees, how do you utilize the rebates your PBM negotiates to lower health care costs or drug costs for your employee plans and what does your company do with that savings? Specifically, do the savings go toward lowing premiums?

We use any savings to offset total plan costs, enhance benefits, and lower premium and out of pocket costs for our employees. In order to ensure our employees have affordable access to medicine, we have a monthly per prescription out-of-pocket cap.

3. All witnesses: for those of you who do use a PBM to help manage the prescription drug benefit for your employees, does your PBM offer point-of-sale rebates to your employees? \

We are exploring the possibility of offering point-of-sale rebates with our PBM.

Senator Whitehouse:

For all witnesses:

1. Please describe any policy changes you support that would result in your company lowering the list prices of its drugs.

We support rebate reforms that ensure patients benefit from negotiated rebates and discounts— $150 billion in 2017 alone—and, as a result, have patients see lower out-of-pocket costs at the pharmacy.

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-of-sale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

2. How much does your company's research and development portfolio rely on taxpayerfunded research conducted by the National Institutes of Health (NIH)? How many of your company's products are based, at least in part, on NIH research, and how many are the result of research funded solely by your company?

The NIH plays an important role in medical research, primarily funding basic research on medical problems. The pharmaceutical industry is responsible for developing the solutions undertaking the long, financially risky, and costly process to discover a compound and develop new medicines that meet the stringent safety and efficacy requirements of the FDA. In those instances where NIH contributes to a product that is brought to market, NIH would receive any contracted license fees or royalties. 3. In each of the last five years, how much has your company spent on research and development versus the advertising and marketing of your products?

Below is a chart including global Janssen R&D and Sales & Marketing expenditures over the last five years. Sales and marketing includes expenses related to: (1) selling, (2) marketing management, (3) market and consumer research, and (4) advertising and promotion.

Janssen R&D	$6.2B	$6.8B	$7B	$7.9B	$8.4B
Janssen Sales	$4.5B	$4.6B	$4.5B	$4.2B	$4.5B
& Marketing

4. During the hearing, you mentioned that your company would be likely to lower the list prices of its drugs if the recent proposal by the Trump administration to change the current system of rebates was extended to the private market.

- a. If the policy was extended to the private market, how large would the list price reductions be relative to the size of the rebates your company is currently providing?
- b. How will this proposal affect how your company sets the list prices for new drug products?

Depending on whether elimination of rebates applies to the entire market or only to those related to federal health plans and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to lower list prices or offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. In either case, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to list price reductions or point-ofsale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may seek to replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may seek to shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

c. If the proposal is finalized and not extended to the private market, will your company make any list price reductions? If so, how large would the reductions be relative to the size of the rebates your company is currently providing?

If elimination of rebates applies only to Medicare and Medicaid Managed Care and assuming rebates are not replaced by high fees or other costs that offset the amount saved, we expect to offer discounts for pass-through at the point of sale. To do so, we would need to renegotiate our agreements with customers.

The degree to which we can convert current rebates to point-of-sale discounts will depend upon the details of the final regulation and the reactions of other stakeholders in the supply chain. We are concerned that PBMs may replace rebate revenue with new and increasing fees or may shift costs among supply chain participants through service fees.

Senator Hassan:

For all witnesses:

In June of 2018, the Medicaid and CHIP Payment and Access Commission (MACPAC) unanimously recommended under Recommendation 1.1 in their annual report to Congress that Congress remove the statutory requirement that manufacturers blend the average manufacturer price (AMP) of a brand drug and its authorized generic.¹

This requirement created an unintended loophole. Rather than use the price of the authorized generic, drug companies can sell its authorized generic to a corporate subsidiary at an artificially lower price, and use that lower price to bring down the AMP, which in turn lowers the rebate obligation.

Does your company engage in this practice? Has your company ever engaged in this practice in the past?

We do not include authorized generic internal transfer prices to an affiliate when calculating Average Manufacturer Price for the branded product. Under previous versions of the statute and CMS guidance, we have at times in the past included in Average Manufacturer Price the transfer prices of our authorized generic sold to an affiliate.

Senator Cortez Masto:

1. Questions to all witnesses

As a portion of your revenue, for what percentage of the drugs in your portfolio do you offer no rebates? Based on the drugs in your pipeline, do you foresee that portion growing? For those drugs is your list price equal to your net price?

The information requested is confidential and competitively sensitive. As such, potentially responsive information is not available for public disclosure.

Do you invest more in R&D than you generate in US sales revenue? Please include specific figures.

Janssen is one of the world's top R&D investors in any industry, anywhere in the world. In 2018 we invested $8.4B in pharmaceutical R&D globally. Our pharmaceutical revenue in the U.S. was $23.3B. We invested 86% more in pharmaceutical R&D ($8.4B) than we spent on pharmaceutical global sales and marketing ($4.5B).

Do you invest more in R&D than you spend on marketing and administration? What company functions do you consider to be included in administration? Please include specific figures.

Johnson & Johnson is comprised of three business segments: pharmaceuticals (Janssen), medical devices, and consumer products. In its financial statements, Johnson & Johnson reports a global total figure across all segments for Sales, Marketing & Administration ("SM&A"). This figure combines marketing, sales, and administrative expenses such as insurance, legal, finance, and product distribution. In 2018, that global, cross-sector SM&A expenditure was $22.54B. The total global, cross-sector R&D investment by J&J in 2018 was $10.78B.

Johnson & Johnson does not report SM&A by business segment. Janssen, the pharmaceutical segment of J&J, invested $8.4B in R&D globally in 2018 and spent $4.5B on marketing and sales globally.

Do you invest more in R&D than you spend on marketing and sales? What company functions do you consider to be included in sales? Please include specific figures.

In 2018, we invested 86% more in pharmaceutical R&D ($8.4B) than we spent on pharmaceutical global sales and marketing ($4.5B). Sales and marketing includes: (1) our expenses related to selling, (2) marketing management, (3) market and consumer research, and (4) advertising and promotion.

Why do you advertise for the drugs you manufacture? What factors do you consider in choosing which drugs you advertise?

We believe direct-to-consumer communication, including advertising, can empower patients with information to help them have appropriate discussions with their healthcare providers, including dialogue about the risks and benefits of treatment. We provide accurate, up-to-date educational materials to help patients facing diseases our medicines treat and to help patients who take our medicines understand how to use them properly.

We believe acting ethically and responsibly is not only the right thing to do but also the right way to do business. We follow all relevant laws and regulations regarding the promotion of prescription drug products and submit promotional materials to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration at the time of initial publication or dissemination.

We work to communicate in ways that will be most valuable in empowering patients to have appropriate dialogue with their healthcare providers.

We consider the availability of information and awareness of treatment options. We build a communication plan that can include a variety of channels, with direct-to-consumer advertising being one channel among many we may use.

Janssen has also made financial donations to independent charitable foundations that assist patients who are underinsured and in financial need with treatment-related expenses. In keeping with our donor agreements and applicable regulatory guidance, we will only disclose aggregate data on our charitable giving and do not publicize information on donations to specific foundations and disease states. In 2014, we contributed approximately $40 million in donations to independent charitable foundations, enabling them to provide assistance with medication-related copays to patients with cancer diseases.

Janssen has also made financial donations to independent charitable foundations that assist patients who are underinsured and in financial need with treatment-related expenses. In keeping with our donor agreements and applicable regulatory guidance, we will only disclose aggregate data on our charitable giving and do not publicize information on donations to specific foundations and disease states. In 2014, we contributed approximately $5.8 million in donations to independent charitable foundations, enabling them to provide assistance with medication-related copays to patients with infectious diseases.

Janssen has also made financial donations to independent charitable foundations that assist patients who are underinsured and in financial need with treatment-related expenses. In keeping with our donor agreements and applicable regulatory guidance, we will only disclose aggregate data on our charitable giving and do not publicize information on donations to specific foundations and disease states. In 2016, we contributed $47 million in donations to independent charitable foundations, enabling them to provide assistance with medication-related copays to patients with cancer and autoimmune diseases.

Janssen has also made financial donations to independent charitable foundations that assist patients who are underinsured and in financial need with treatment-related expenses. In keeping with our donor agreements and applicable regulatory guidance, we will only disclose aggregate data on our charitable giving and do not publicize information on donations to specific foundations and disease states. In 2017, we contributed approximately $61 million in donations to independent charitable foundations, enabling them to provide assistance with medication-related copays to patients with cancer and autoimmune diseases.

Actelion has also made financial donations to independent charitable foundations that assist patients who are underinsured and in financial need with treatmentrelated expenses. In keeping with our donor agreements and applicable regulatory guidance, we will only disclose aggregate data on our charitable giving and do not publicize information on donations to specific foundations and disease states. In 2018, we contributed approximately $50.2 million in donations to independent charitable foundations, enabling them to provide assistance with medication-related copays to patients withpulmonary hypertension.
